DHIA Records Expose Loss Income From Mastitis

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER —Are farmers afraid to find out how much money mastitis is costing them?

During a training session on using DHIA records conducted by Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Dairy Extension Agent, farmers learned to use DHIA reports to determine loss of income from mastitis problems. Future training sessions are scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 28 in the Mt. Joy area and Friday, Jan. 29, in the Quarryville area. Farmers will be shown how DHIA records can help them make many management decisions.

Value of Somatic Cell Counting

The most costly disease in dairy cattle is mastitis and the most accurate measure of udder health that appears on the DHIA records is the linear score of somatic cells. The cows with the lowest SCC are usually the highest producers and return the greatest profits as shown by the following tables.

An analysis of DHIA records indicate that the single most important factor accounting for milk production variation amoung herds was the somatic cell count.

Cows with the lowest SCC in early lactation are less likely to experience increased SCC later as compared to cows with cell counts greater than 100,000. The evidence suggests that SCC linear scores of 0-1 are the best and herd averges of 3 and below are ideal for maximum milk and maximum profit.

Ag Industry Complex Proposed By Fulton County Farmer

BY
EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

CAMP HILL — A Fulton County farmer with a master's degree in physics wants to build a 200- to 500-acre agricultural industry complex that eats up burnable waste from the city and [redacted] farms but creates no waste of its own.

He looks at garage as a renewable resource that can be used to create steam for heat or generate electric power. This energy can then be used to, among other things, raise vegetables or cut flowers, manufacture cheese, can pet food, dry lumber for furniture or pellet manure to send back to suburbia as a lawn and garden supply.

And this teacher turn farmer and engineering consultant, Mathern Mellott, of Harrisonville has the technical experience and personal research data to capture the attention of academic, government and environmental persons. His presentation at the marketing conference at the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association's annual meeting in November has started the quest for a steering committee to seek funding for a feasibility study on an agricultural synergism that would benefit all the people of Pennsylvania.

Junior Livestock Prices Shatter Records

BY
EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG — The Annual Junior Livestock Sale on Friday morning usually provides the climax of a week of farming activities at the Farm Show here. And this year was no exception. The first champion in the ring was Scott Kuzemchak's champion lamb. And as Abe Diffenbach's auctioneer's song filled the small arena, the price went higher and higher until Foxes Market of Elizabethtown, Hershey, Harrisburg and Camp Hill had paid a record $9,675. That's $75 per pound. The Fox family has been a long-time supporter of the youth sale by buying champions and other animals to insure good prices for these projects.

The reserve champion shown by Scott's younger brother Joe was bought by another annual supporter of the market livestock sale. Willie The Butcher of Lancaster County paid $10 per pound for a total of $1,220.

In the steer sale, the small boy with a big smile now has a bigger bank account. With the record bid of $13.50 per pound for his grand champion steer, 10-year-old Joshua Cowell, Greene County, sold out to Danny George of George's Foodliner in Bethleham.

The 1280-pound champion named "Coal" put a record $17,280 into Joshua's pocket. The previous record for the grand champion steer was $12 per pound or a total of $15,060 bid by the Arthur J. Glatfelter Agency of York in 1983.

This year's reserve champion, Mike Messick of Middletown, Dauphin County, earned more with the number two title than he earned last year when he had the grand champion. Mike's reserve champ brought $8.50 per pound for a total of $10,625 on a bid by Foxes Markets. At last year's show, Mike's grand champion brought $7.75 per pound for a total of $9,881.

A record lamb price of $75 per pound was paid by Foxes Market to Scott Kuzemchak. The Fox family (left to right) are: Leremy, Brian, Bill and Leroy.

Mark Hull sold his champion to Hatfield Quality Meats for $18 per pound. With Hull are Boyd Wolff, state ag secretary and Jerry Clemens from Hatfield.

Farm Preservation Act Reviewed At Chester Young Farmers Meet

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

ATGLEN — Look at the Farm Preservation Act carefully, Pennsylvania Senator Noah Wenger, Ephrata (R-36), told the Octorara Young Farmers Association Monday night. Decide from a business, not an emotional, standpoint whether or not to sell development rights to your farm, Wenger advised.

Wenger and Representative Arthur Hershey, Cochranville (R-13), explained how $100 million is to be distributed to Pennsylvania farmers as a result of the referendum that passed by a 2-1 margin statewide in November.

When the State Legislature reconvenes this week it will write the enabling legislation to put the bond issue money where farmland is in greatest jeopardy, according to Wenger. "Until that legislation is passed we are not going to have all the details that you may be interested in. However," the senator said, "there's a general basic agreement about what concepts will be used."

FUTURES MARKET TRENDS GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

This market information provided by ACRES ACRES is a copyrighted market information service developed by the American Farm Bureau and available to Pennsylvania farmers on a daily basis through Pennsylvania Farmers' Association Farm Management Services For additional market comments and trading service contact PFA Commodity Futures Service (717) 761-2740

ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures settled from 1-1/2 to 2 cents lower today as positions were liquidated in response to the sharply lower Dow Jones. The downward momentum was slowed as buying interest was piqued by the long-awaited decline and provided support. Further buying was tied to the continuance of light country movement as PIK and Roll has become almost non-existent at higher PCP's and general farmer bullishness. The present export scenario provided further support as well as last week's export inspections report which was well above trade estimates. March lost 1-3/4 cents today and closed at $1.99 after opening at $2.01-1/2.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybeans settled from 3 cents higher to 7-1/2 cents lower today in a choppy session. The January option expired at noon today with a gain of 3 cents while March closed at a 1 cent discount to Jan. at $6.26. Heavy liquidation resulted in a sharply lower Dow Jones and concerns that the Ag Committee in Washington would come out with a plan to increase bean acreage in time for 1988 crop. Prices were as much as 7 cents higher until the last 20 minutes of trading when March failed to break above $6.35 resistance. The November option traded as high as $6.49 and closed at $6.35, down 7-1/4 cents.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures settled fractionally higher this afternoon, but well off session highs as spillover from the bean pit brought prices lower near the close. March wheat traded as high as $3.32-1/2, but the sharply lower Dow Jones and news that mild temps and snow had eased ideas of winterkill in the Soviet Union, and rain in India tempered further gains. Further support came from renewed export bonus rumors and yesterday's higher than anticipated export inspection figures.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live cattle and feeder cattle futures lost ground today as long liquidation and a sharply lower Dow

INTERNATIONAL WEATHER FOR WEEK ENDED JAN. 16, 1988: UNITED STATES: SNOW COVER VIRTUALLY VANISHED IN THE CENTRAL GREAT PLAINS AND SOUTHERN CORN BELT STATES, BUT WARMER TEMPERATURES KEPT WINTER GRAIN DAMAGE TO A MINIMUM. WARMER TEMPERATURES EASED LIVESTOCK STRESS IN MOST AREAS. WHEAT AND SMALL GRAINS WERE MOSTLY GOOD TO FAIR. SMALL GRAIN SEEDING PROGRESSED WELL IN CALIFORNIA. EARLIER SEEDED FIELDS WERE GOOD AND WARM DAYS PROMOTED GROWTH. WHEAT AND BARLEY SEEDINGS WERE FINISHED IN WESTERN AND CENTRAL AREAS, AND ESTABLISHED STANDS WERE GOOD. SMALL GRAIN SEEDING CONTINUED IN GEORGIA. IN ARKANSAS, DAMAGE TO WHEAT FROM THE HEAVY RAINS AND SNOW WAS INSIGNIFICANT. SNOW COVER PROVIDED PROTECTION FOR WINTER WHEAT FROM THE COLD, WINDY CONDITIONS IN EASTERN COLORADO.

SOUTH AMERICA· IN SOUTH-CENTRAL BRAZIL, SUBSTANTIAL RAIN IN WESTERN RIO GRANDE DO SUL IMPROVED SOYBEAN GROWING CONDITIONS FOLLOWING WELL-BELOW- AVERAGE RAINFALL IN DECEMBER AND EARLY JANUARY COOLER WEATHER ACCOMPANIED THE RAIN WIDESPREAD RAIN COVERED MUCH OF BRAZIL'S PRIMARY SOYBEAN GROWING AREA, FAVORING CROP DEVELOPMENT DECEMBER RAINFALL WAS QUITE VARIABLE, WITH BELOW AVERAGE AMOUNTS.

WESTERN U S.S.R : LIGHT TO MODERATE SNOW OVER WINTER GRAINS IN BELORUSSIA INCREASED SNOW COVER. WINTER GRAIN AREAS IN THE WESTERN AND SOUTHERN UKRAINE AND THE CENTRAL NORTH CAUCASUS WERE WITHOUT A PROTECTIVE SNOW COVER. COOLER WEATHER COVERED THE REGION BUT AVERAGE TEMPERATURES CONTINUED ABOVE NORMAL.

OPINION

Pocketbook At The Heart

Many people give of their time, talents and money to help make youth programs and projects a success. That was evident at this year's Farm Show. Maybe you saw the county agent who worked with 4-Her's. Or the vo-ag teacher who worked with the chapter members. The adult leaders who gave a word of encouragement or a shoulder to cry on if things didn't work out. We salute everyone who helps with youth programs in one way or another.

Especially noteable this year were the buyers at the Junior Livestock Sale who gave record prices for some of the champions. The Foxes, Danny George, Hatfield and Willie The Butcher. All spend large sums of money for their champion purchases. And those who bought all the other entries should also be applauded.

Of course you might say it's good business advertising to buy a champion. And it is. And if you only saw these buyers once a year at the Farm Show, you might begin to suspect the purchase is purely a business transaction. But you see these buyers again and again. At the county fairs, and at the FFA and 4-H sales across the state. So you begin to realize it's more than just a business transaction. And when you get to know the people involved, you learn that these successful business people simply love young people and they use this way to express their support of the junior programs. You might say they put their pocketbook where their heart is located. That's true love. Thanks!

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin

To Exercise Dairy Cows

The importance of turning out the dairy herd each day from stanchion or comfort stalls should not be overlooked. As we expect more production per cow, the stresses are greater, and if not given exercise, more breeding problems will result. Dairy farmers with free-stalls have the opportunity of observing heat periods all the time. However, cows that are confined to stalls present a problem with heat detection. There are very few days that the weather is so bad that the milking herd should not be turned out for a few minutes. If the dairyman is alert and observing, cows that are in heat can be observed and bred. Exercise might help the herds with breeding problems.

To Be Sure Ponds Are Safe

Over the last couple weeks I've noticed a lot of people, both young and old, ice skating on farm ponds. It's good exercise and an excellent sport. But, be sure you are prepared in case of an accident. Owners should be certain that rescue equipment is handy and not in the barn or garage several blocks away. Wooden ladders, boards and other items can be shoved out to the person in the water if needed; it should be large enough to distribute the weight of the person making the rescue. A rope is also a good item to pull people out with.

Skating is a very enjoyable winter sport. Don't be the victim of an accident that could have been prevented.

To Recognize Stress in Farming

Life can become so hectic ... too much to do ... on the run. You've been on the tractor in the barn almost nonstop since sunrise and there's too much on your mind to notice the stunning sunset. Farming is still full of the best in life. Probably many of the reasons you wanted to be a farmer or live on a farm are the very things you don't pay much attention to anymore

It's more than machinery or livestock, bills or market fluctuations -- it's a way of life which in itself holds much to be desired and appreciated.

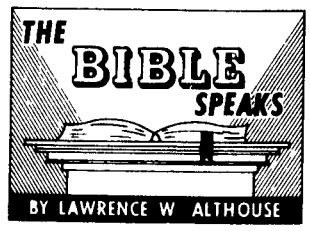
We must not let the excessive stress on the farm interfere with our home and family life. Medical research estimates as high as 90% of today's illness and disease is stress related. Farming is one of the most stressful occupations today. We must admit stress before we can deal with it. Most importantly, take time to "smell the flowers". And say to yourself -- just for today, I will live through the next twelve hours and not try to tackle all life's problems at once.

To Prune Shade Trees

Winter is a good time to prune the shade trees on your property because the trees are dormant and won't be affected by the trimming as much. The bare limbs let you see where and how much to prune. And it's easier to reshape tangled and low-hanging branches.

Most trees need thinning when they approach maturity. But, corrective pruning is important when trees are young. While the young tree is growing it's important to remove a branch startung in the wrong position because this branch could change the whole tree structure.

Pruning consists mostly of cuttings that train the tree ... but it generally involves more and more thinning out of weak and dead wood as the tree matures. There is a saying that "as the branch is bent, so will the tree grow." With pruning, the results are even more drastic, for a limb which is cut will not grow back. So it's important to know the proper method of pruning before you start. The pruning of dormant shade trees while they are young will determine to a large measure, the beauty and health of a tree in later years.



THE POWER TO HEAL

January 24, 1988

Background Scripture:
Matthew 8: 1 through 9:34.
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 12: 22-28.

What a parade of people, human needs and mighty acts Matthew presents to us in the eighth and ninth chapters of his gospel. It starts with Jesus cleansing a leper. Then there's a Roman centurion asking for healing for his paralyzed servant. We see him heal Peter's mother-in-law "lying sick with a fever," cast out demons from the possessed, raise a man who has been paralyzed, cure a woman with a hemorrhage, restore the sight of two blind men and the speech of a dumb man, and raise from the dead Jairus's daughter. And then, just so we won't get the impression that that is all Jesus did, Matthew tells us he "healed all who were sick" (8:16).

The crowds were impressed and Matthew tells us they "marveled, saying, 'Never was anything like this seen in Israel" (9:34). Finishing that passage, I was struck with something that previously had eluded me. After this recital of might works by Jesus, Matthew closes with the response of the Pharisees: "He casts out demons by the prince of demons" (9:34)! Incredible! Jesus did all these wonderful acts of compassion and the best the Pharisees could manage was an accusation that Jesus was in league "the prince of demons." Talk about seeing "the log" in someone else's eye! Talk about "sour grapes"! They couldn't dispute his results, so they attacked his authority, Sound familiar?

WORDS, WORDS, WORDS

Actually, the Pharisees opposed Jesus for two reasons: what he taught and what he did. His teaching they regarded as "dangerous," but what he did was even more threatening: his actions supported and confirmed his words. No wonder the people were saying that he taught as one with authority "and not as the scribes." The Pharisees had made their religion one of ruler and regulations— words; words and more words, Jesus, on the other hand, was presenting religion as something more powerful than words.

Yet, despite all these mighty works, Jesus' purpose was not to impress people with what he couldn't do. In fact, he often downplayed his acts of healing and help: "See that you say nothing to anyone; but go, show yourself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a proof to the people" (8:4). What motivated Jesus was his compassion for people in need.

DEEDS, DEEDS, DEEDS

We might say that his compassion was no respecter of persons. He healed the lowest members of society— lepers'. He healed the enemy— the centurian's servant. He healed the spiritually untouchables— the demon-possessed. He forgave a sinner— the paralytic. Broken bodies, broken minds, broken spirits— he healed them all. He even healed a man with broken relationships, a tax collector named Matthew. And just so there would be no misunderstanding about associating with these "disreputable" people, Jesus said: "For I came not to call the righteous, but sinners" (9:13b).

That is why Christianity of all religions of the world is essentially a healing, saving faith. For Jesus Christ came, not alone to tell us the truth, but to be the truth of God— healing our brokenness wherever and whenever and in whomever he finds it.

Jones terminated buying interest. Further pressure came from ideas that the market had become "topy" and was due for a technical correction, especially after a steep increase in open interest for back month contracts was released. Higher trending average cash prices provided some support to the front month feeder cattle option, with losses of only 7 points compared to losses in the Feb. live cattle of 67 points.

Pre-estimates for this week's USDA Cattle-on-Feed quarterly report were released as follows:

Average Estimate Total Range
On Feed 1/01 104.7% 103 - 107%
Dec. Placements 87.8% 82 - 94%
Dec. Marketings 102.0% 97 - 106.6%.

This appears to be fairly neutral for front months and bullish for back months with the light placements and active marketings.

CME FEEDER CATTLE SETTLEMENT PRICE: 01/18/88 $81.66 up $ .14.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady futures-steady to lower.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures settled sharply lower this afternoon with strong selling through out the session attributed to ideas that the complex had been overbought and profit-taking. Midday wholesale was quoted weaker and ideas that cash openings would be weaker tomorrow activated further sales. The USDA pre-release estimates for the cold storage report came in at 62.5 million pounds which compared to 35.6 million pounds of frozen bellies on Nov. 30th.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady to lower futures - lower

W-L Alfalfas

Why grow anything but the Best?

"W-L is very definitely a high quality seed The varieties are dependable, the crop is more persistent, and I think the hay quality is better. I took 4 cuttings last year, and the fourth was just like the first!"

Carl Kreider
Quarryville, PA

"I plant 900 acres with W-L because it gives me tonnage and quality. WL 316 comes back quickly and stays fine When you're doing as many acres as I am, that leaf to stem ratio is important"

Dean Stuart
Corning, NY

"The WL 318 has done very well. We've got one bed we planted 8 years ago, and it's still producing. We got four cuttings this year! And we planted some 316 this Spring, and it did exceptionally well!"

Ross Smith, Jr.

Evergreen Sold Most Tractors In Pennsylvania

Evergreen Tractor Inc., Lebanon, sold the most tractors in Pennsylvania. Dennis Grumbine, owner (right), received special recognition from Donald Worner, John Deere Company Manager at a special dealer day at Lebanon Area Fairgrounds.

Evergreen Tractor Inc. of Lebanon, was presented a special recognition award from Deere & Co. during their annual John Deere Day celebration held January 20 at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds. This award recognized superior sales success and achievements.

Presentation of the award was made by Donald Worner, Territory Manager, John Deere Co. - Columbus, Ohio. "This award has a special significance as it recognizes top selling dealerships during Deere's 150th anniversary year. With the highest unit sales of John Deere farm tractors in the state of Pennsylvania, Evergreen Tractor Inc. can be very proud of it's accomplishments during 1987."

Dennis Grumbine, president of Evergreen Tractor Inc., accepted the award stating, "This award is very meaningful to myself and all of the dealership employees. It is the efforts of our sales, service, and parts people which has enabled our dealership to gain this leadership position. We are looking forward to serving the agricultural community with a high level of quality for many years to come and are very encouraged by the outlook for 1988."

Guernseys Registrations Increase

An increase in registration and transfer applications highlighted the close of a very successful year for the American Guernsey Association (AGA). A total of 20,289 registration applications and 6,714 transfer applications were received by the association office in 1987. These numbers show an increase of 23.3 percent in registrations and 3.3 percent in transfer activity from the previous year. The total number of applications processed for the 1987 calendar year was 22 percent above 1986 figures.

"This increase can be attributed to two major factors," according to Records Department Director Arlene Crosser. "The Genetic Recovery program was influential in bringing quite a few Guernseys into the herdbook during the year," Crosser said. "The use of the fee-waivers also encouraged many people who had fallen behind to update their registrations," Crosser concluded.

"The interest in Guernseys has generally increased," AGA Executive Secretary-Treasurer Erick Metzger stated. Highlighting the results of the increase in Guernsey registration numbers Metzger said, "The value of registration papers is being reflected in the marketplace." Like Crosser, Metzger credits the AGA's Genetic Recovery program with some of the success. "Herds that started with the Genetic Recovery program several years ago have continued to register their cattle," he concluded.

More Holstein Convention Plans Announced

LANCASTER — Wednesday night's gala banquet will provide the perfect setting for those attending the Pennsylvania Holstein Convention to celebrate the organization's diamond anniversary. With the convention scheduled for February 23, 24, and 25, the activities planned for Wednesday evening the 24th are sure to be a highlight of the three day week.

The convention will be held at the new Willow Valley Family Resort and Convention Center at Willow Street, just south of Lancaster city, and its new ballroom will be the setting for sparkling entertainment by Re-Creation, a singing group of eight dynamic young performers headquartered in Pennsylvania. Re-Creation performs over 300 performances a year throughout the United States, with music ranging from standards to contemporary to patriotic.

Another main event for Wednesday evening will take place following the banquet - a first-ever auction to establish a scholarship fund for junior members.

The auction will feature a stained glass portrait of the great sire Osborndale Ivanhoe, created by Steve Kinney of Lost Nation, Iowa. This is the fourth "portrait" created by Kinney, and he will personally deliver the art and help display it all day Tuesday and Wednesday.

The portrait measures seven foot by six foot four inches, and is in a diamond shaped solid oak frame. Even the oak frame is special, hand selected by Kinney from a mill where it had been aged for six years and carefully chosen so there are no knotholes.

About his venture into artwork, Kinney says, "I love doing it and it's been very good to me." Injured in a farm accident, Kinney is partially paralized. Having grown up on a dairy farm, Kinney still owns several Holsteins. housed throughout the country. He and his family live on Obsession Haven Holsteins farm at Lost Nation.

Kinney makes it clear that he is delighted with the opportunity for one of his portraits to be used in a scholarship auction. He says, "I am very fond of young breeders and am happy to be able to help the young. It is a sincere honor to be with you throughout the convention."

To complement the Ivanhoe portrait, the Board of Directors of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, home of Ivanhoe, has donated two ampules of Ivanhoe semen, to be sold together, to the auction.

According to chairman George Cashell, there will be six embryos donated by Ed Dobriener, and by Dr. Alan MacCauley of Emtran. Semen is also being donated by

The recipient of the Blue and Gold Award created in 1985 to honor those who contributed considerable amount of effort to the advancement of the Pennsylvania FFA went to Henry Givler. Givler taught vo-ag at both Red Lion and Pequea Valley. Later he was named supervisor of Lancaster-York and then vocational consultant to Lancaster and Chester Counties.

In making the presentation, President Spayd noted Givler's compassion for state officers and FFA members statewide. Givler said he enjoyed the work with FFA and thought it kept him young. "I hope FFA members, advisors and teachers will continue to uphold the traditions of our state FFA," Givler said.

Cost-Price Squeeze Seen For 1988

BY KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

Lower prices and perhaps higher costs will combine to make 1988 a far more difficult year financially than 1987 was for area dairymen, according to local ag economists.

The worst news is the lower prices. Because this projection is based on the impact of the Jan. 1 support price cut and fairly typical supply-demand patterns in the price-setting milk markets of the upper Midwest, it also is more certain.

Economists at New York's Cornell University are predicting dairy farmers nationwide will receive an average price of $11.65 a hundredweight, about 80 cents, or six percent, less than they got in 1987.

Local prices may not decline as drastically, but the outlook is still gloomy. Jim Fraher, an economist for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, is predicting the blend prices received by farmers will dip 45 - 52 cents from 1987 levels.

Specifically, Fraher projects the blend price to Federal Order 4 will average $12.22. Because all dairymen will pay a 2½ -cent assessment throughout the year, the effective average price will be $12.19½. That would be 45¾ cents less than the effective price in 1987.

Similarly, Fraher projects Federal Order 2 prices at the 201-210 mile zone will average $11.47½, net of assessments, in 1988, 58¾ cents less than they did in 1987.

Fraher said his projections are based on the outlook for the Minnesota-Wisconsin price series, a measure of manufacturing milk prices in the upper Midwest used to set prices in the federal order system. The M-W, as it's known, stands at $11.12 for December. Fraher predicts it will follow a typical pattern of spring decline and fall resurgence, resulting in an average price over the whole year of $10.60. That would still be 27 cents above the $10.33 support price level for 3.5-percent milk.

The only mitigating factor in this downbeat scenarie is the possibility that over-order premiums will recoup at least a portion of local farmers' lost income. Fraher's forecast does not attempt to gauge this impact.

During the last four months of 1987, both the Middle Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Agency (for dairymen regulated under Order 4) and the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (primarily for producers in orders 1 and 2) have collected and distributed premiums. Of the two agencies, MACMMA has been much more successful in maintaining its price. But agency officials acknowledge their premiums are never likely to be high enough to offset the kind of price declines forecast by Fraher and other economists.

Although the cost side of the equation may not prove to be as negative, it isn't likely to provide any relief.

Dick Dennison, who heads up Farm Management Services for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, said 1988 offers "the very real possibility of higher costs." Although his service, which helps about 4,200 farmers statewide, has not yet developed formal projections for 1988, Dennison said that trends in purchased feeds and hired labor indicate these major inputs may push production costs higher this year. He also questioned whether dairymen could continue, as they have in the past few years, to economize my delaying repairs or replacement of equipment and facilities.

In New York, Cornell economists have predicted a three-percent rise in production costs this year.

If the cost-price squeeze tightens as expected, the bottom line could be significantly fewer dairy farmers by year's end. The Cornell scientists, for instance, are predicting a three-four percent attrition rate in New York.

National Dairy Board Continues Effort

ARLINGTON, Va. — In continuing efforts to work toward a consolidation of national dairy promotion and research programs, a National Dairy Board committee of dairy farmers met January 7, 1988 in Dallas with a similar committee from the United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA).

The committees agreed to equal representation from state and regional promotion organizations on a 36-member National Dairy Board.

The committees also jointly decided that legal advice from the United States Department of Agriculture was necessary to determine the best option(s) to establish a consolidated national program.

A follow-up meeting of the two committees will be held in the near future.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, composed of 36 dairy farmers, was established by The Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983 to develop and administer a coordinated program of promotion, research and nutrition education to strengthen the dairy industry position in the marketplace. This effort is financed by America's dairy farmers.

UDIA conducts a total promotion program to increase sales of U.S.-produced milk and other real dairy foods. UDIA and its member organizations and affiliated Dairy Council units invest $110 million annually in a unified promotion program.

Farm Preservation Act Reviewed

Basically, Wenger explained, a state-level committee, which will include farmers, will help oversee the program. The distribution formula is to include the amount of land changing ownership in a county and the amount of agriculture in a county.

Half of the money is to be granted to counties in relation to the number of real estate transfers that took place in each county in the previous year, Wenger stated. The other half of the money is to be given on a matching basis according to the amount of agriculture taking place in a particular county.

A county with greater than two percent of Pennsylvania's agriculture is to receive eight dollars for every one the county puts up. With less than two percent of the state's farming, a county will be given only four dollars to one, according to Wenger.

Chester and Lancaster Counties will both qualify for greater percentages of the total state money because they each have more than two percent of the state's agriculture and a large number of real estate transfers, the senator said.

Representative Arthur Hershey (R-13), Octorara High School Vo-Ag teacher Ivan Stauffer, Senator Noah Wenger (R=36), and Octorara Young Farmers Association President Duane Hershey confer at Octorara High School, Atglen, Chester County.

"The intent is to put the money in the good farmland that has the capability of generating income," Wenger explained. "On the other side of the formula, the money is to go into the counties where there's pressure for development." Where land is staying in families, there's no need to appropriate state funds to preserve land, he added.

After the county gets the money it will negotiate with individual landowners to see if they want to sell their development rights, according to Wenger. If the money is not committed to two years it will go back to the state to be reappropriated.

The value of a development right is determined very simply, the senator said. Ask an appraiser what your farm is worth for farming and what would it bring if it were sold for other purposes, such as subdivision. The difference between the two figures is the value of the development right.

The counties will have the responsibilitiy to have the land appraised, according to Wenger. "The state will say you can't pay more than that appraisal."

A development right can be sold to the county in perpetuity for full value or for 25 years for one-tenth the value, he said.

"The program is not going to be for everyone," Wegner emphasized. "Decide if it fits your program." He mentioned retirement income, need for capital, estate planning and the opportunity for investment as four circumstances which could make selling development rights attractive to farmers. He urged the Young Farmers to figure it out carefully and to talk to their own tax consultants.

The senator predicted that the enabling bill will pass this coming spring and then Governor Casey will have to sign it. The timetable for distributing money will depend upon the Government Budget Office, which issues the bonds. "I would not expect any money to get out to the counties until the new fiscal year beginning July 1, 1988," said he, speculating that not a lot of money would be seen on the farms before 1989.

Both Wenger and Hershey emphasized that the program is strictly voluntary. Hershey predicted that the demand for land will increase.

"This is a tool to save the prime agricultural soil in southeastern Pennsylvania," Hershey told the group. Both legislators stressed the need to protect the area's numerous agribusiness jobs that depend on local farming.

"I don't think that you are ever going to have enough money to purchase easements on all the land that's good farmland," Wenger declared. "But we have $100 million available and it's a challenge to use it to the best advantage. It's $100 million more than we got in a long time for agriculture."

Sire Power, American Breeders Service, Taurus, Landmark Genetics and Diehls Genetics.

Cashell said the Horace Backus of Backus Pedigrees will read pedigrees and prepare the catalog for the sale.

A full sized quilt featuring the convention logo will be offered at the auction, as well as an autographed Penn State football, and two oil paintings.

Willow Valley, site of the convention, is donating a cake to serve 300 people, decorated with the convention logo. "Shares" of this cake will be available through the Futures Syndicate at $20.00 a piece. Cashell says anyone not wishing to purchase a share in the cake should "steer clear of Cashell."

Proceeds from the benefit auction will be invested, and the interest only will be used to award scholarships for any post high school, ag related course. Cashell said the first of the scholarships will be awarded at the February, 1989, convention.

Having a ticket to the banquet will ensure a seat for the auction which will immediately follow.

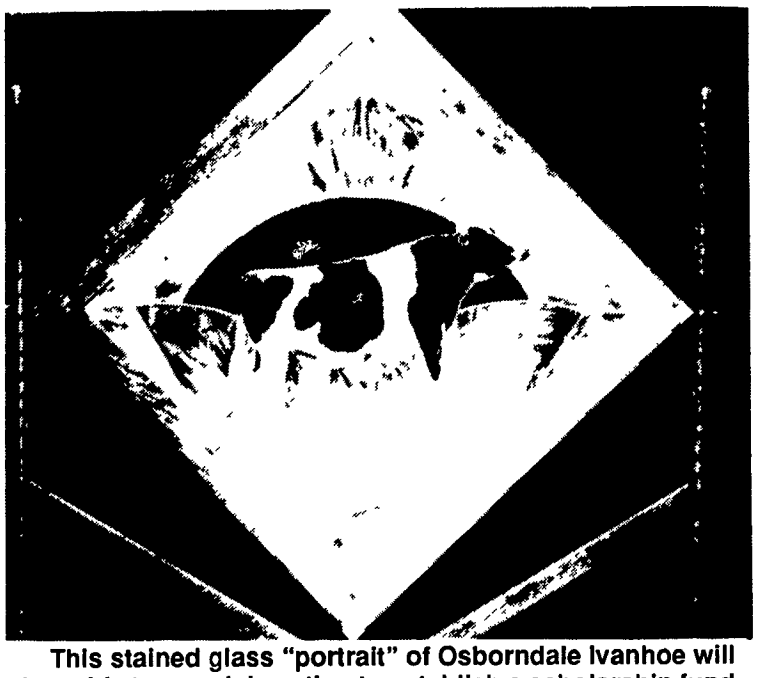
There will also be an announcement of two breeders to be named to the Hall of Fame, and many distinguished visitors, including personalities from the early years of the Association, have been invited to attend.

Deadline for tickets for the banquet and other events is February 2, 1988. Tickets can be ordered from Jed and Sue Beshore, 396 Old York Road, New Cumberland, Pa. 17070.

Deadline for housing is also February 2, and those reservations should be made in writing to Willow Valley Family Resort, 2416 Willow Street Pike, Lancaster, Pa. 17602.

Tuesday will be Host Day, with tours during the afternoon. Juniors will be busy throughout the day with Dairy Bowl and Dairyman's competition. The convention sale will be held Tuesday evening, with a pre-sale buffet offered both in the Willow Valley Restaurant and at the convention center. The buffet is on your own, with no tickets necessary. Entertainment prior to the sale will be provided by Ray Owen, an entertainer from Gettysburg.

Wednesday will feature the business meeting, with an address by Dr. John McCormack, featured columnist for Hoard's Dairyman. The juniors will have their own program, and the ladies will enjoy a fashion show and luncheon, with a special presentation on herbs.



This stained glass "portrait" of Osborndale Ivanhoe will be sold at a special auction to establish a scholarship fund for Pennsylvania Junior Holstein members. Created by Steve Kinney of Lost Nation, Iowa, the portrait is just the fourth one he has created or outstanding animals in the Holstein breed. Taking three months to complete, the portrait is framed by specially selected aged oak, in a diamond shape to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

School Milk Promotion Scheduled

SYRACUSE, NY — Junior and senior high schools are the focus of a school milk promotion being implemented by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC). The promotion includes cafeteria display materials and a contest directed at students

The theme for this year's promotion is "Spring Break." It focuses on students taking a healthy break with ice cold milk. The theme also ties in with the spring time period.

Display materials will be distributed to junior and senior high schools throughout New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania during February. These materials will consist of a poster and mobile for use in the cafeteria. A display contest has been developed for cafeteria managers in order to encourage the use of the materials. Managers can enter by submitting a photograph of the materials on display in their cafeteria.

There is also a special student contest planned. The contest is entitled "Picture Yourself Here," with students being invited to submit a photograph of themselves and a group of friends enjoying a break with milk. Students who submit the winning entry will be used as models for the 1989 school promotion materials.

Cimarron Alfalfa
Proven Performance

Donnie Pool, Landhope Farms Mgr., decided to plant 3 acres of Cimarron Alfalfa several years ago...20 acres the next year... and 45 the next...the story goes on from there.

Landhope Farms, West Grove, PA needs a lot of alfalfa hay and haylage to keep their 360 cows producing milk for their chain of convenience stores. Chester County consumers count on Landhope for high quality milk. Donnie counts on those cows and Cimarron to meet the challenge.

Why Cimarron Alfalfa?
"Cimarron grows back about a week faster than the other varieties, and it's ready to cut quicker than the other varieties we used to plant," says Donnie. Landhope looks forward to the proven performance of Cimarron every year - every cutting. Shouldn't you?

How much money is the farmer losing and is it worth it to initiate stricter controls? Loss can be determined with a simple calculation. Examine the following worksheet. Beginning with code three a cow loses 1.5 pounds of milk per day. As the code number increases so does the amount of milk loss per cow per day increase. According to the DHIA figures for this sample farm, this farmer is losing $151.20 per month and more than $1700 per year.

These are calculated with the somatic cell count figures on the DHIA report.(Use the numbers from your DHIA Herd Summary report listed under somatic cell count to calculate how much money your farm is losing each month due to high somatic cell counts.)

The incentive to clean-up the mastitis problem is in dollars and cents. There is income to be gained in the form of more milk production and the premium paid for the low count milk.

"If your herd is in the low range is there any need to continue to get the somatic cell count on your report? For the fee of 84 cents per cow per cow this is cheap insurance," said Shirk."A change in numbers is a flag waving at you. It is the best way to prevent problems. And preventing the disease, believe me, is a lot easier than fighting it," explained Shirk.

Although certain cows appear to inherit mastitis problems, that is not the case. However, cows who are easy and fast milkers with short teats are cows which are prone to mastitis. Fast milkers, leakers are high in cell count, because there is not as much resistance at the teat end. Cows are bred to be easy milkers so in that way they inherit characteristics that cause them to be prone to mastitis from generation to generation.

How To Stop Mastitis

"There is only one way infection can get into the udder. That is by bacteria getting close to the teat end. This means heifers and cows must be kept in an environment where they are not exposed to bacteria," said Shirk.

"If you are having problems with mastitis you must review your practices and make some changes. It's costing you money," warned Shirk.

Farmers should be asking some questions:

——Have the inflators been changed recently?

——Are the belts loose?

——Is the vacuum pump in good working order?

——Are any lines plugged?

——Does the machine need servicing?

——Are the milking practices unsanitary?

——Are cows fenced away from sloppy, muddy areas?

Farmers must clean-up infected cows to eliminate the seed of the infected cows and focus on the bacteria-laden environment. Curing the old cow prevents new cases from being contracted.

"We can't treat infected cows which are lactating with as strong medicine as we can dry cows, because the medicine will show up in the milk. Sometimes it's best to control it in the infected cow and then dry her off and tackle the mastitis with strong treatment." said Shirk.

Shirk strongly suggests farmers track cows individually, each month to see what the trend in the herd is. First calf heifers should be in the 0-1 code, may be a 2, but according to Shirk a rating of code 3 is a sign of trouble. If heifers are constantly being infected, it could be that the person doing the milking is not cleaning and disinfecting the teats properly, and is spreading the disease by using the same wash cloth for each cow instead of dipping teats or using individual cloths.

"Heifers should be infection free. If they are not you've got a problem and you should get it corrected immediately," warns Shirk.

If heifers and cows are constantly being reinfected the animal should be cultured, bacteria should be identified and the veterinarian should be consulted.

"Older cows generally have a higher somatic cell count because they have been around longer to be exposed to more bacteria, but there

10 to 20% less feed consumed to produce the same amount of milk, eggs and meat. Figure all that profit! Ask how. All because nature adds its impetus and blessings as a reward.

And another bonus — you don't pollute the streams, bays and wells. The manure decomposes quickly in live soil, not in dead soil which has the soil microbes killed off by chemicals. You will soon be forced by law to drastically cut chemicals because of consumer demand rising up against polluted food. Organic meat sells for double price some places. Better wean your farm gradually starting now so that you can farm without insecticides. Bugs (scavangers) can't stand sweet mineral rich crops. The Lord sends them to devour the crops that are not up to par, so that you and I don't eat them. Wise plan! Our materials should be applied early. Ask for literature. We sell that soybean seed.

Dairy Princess Teaches Students "Where Milk Comes From"

SYRACUSE, NY — "Where Does Milk Come From" is the latest videotape being offered by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC). The purpose of this video is to help teachers, dairy princesses and parents teach children about milk's origin as well as its importance. The children in grades K-6 at Blossburg Elementary School had the opportunity to view this video when Tioga County Dairy Princess Jenny Grover visited them last week.

The ADADC has a library of ½" videotapes and 16mm films available on topics pertaining to milk, dairy farming and nutrition. Teachers or parents interested in furthering their children's, or their own, knowledge of milk are encouraged to borrow these tapes from the ADADC office.

Here is a brief review of the films and tapes available:

UNCLE JIM'S DAIRY FARM
(22 minutes, 16mm)

Designed for grades 2 through 6. A short drama about a city boy who visits his cousin's family on their modern dairy farm.

WHOLLY COW
(11 minutes, 16mm)

Animated sequences show third graders through adults how the cow's feed is digested, the nutrients absorbed and used to make milk. Cleared for use on nonprofit cable and educational television.

MILK IN THE COMPUTER AGE
(12-½ minutes, ½" VHS)

Designed for grades 4 through 7, this video shows a sixth grade class touring a modern dairy farm and a milk processing plant. The steps taken to protect the quality, safety, and good flavor of milk are emphasized. Cleared for use on nonprofit cable and educational television.

OSTEOPOROSIS: THE SILENT DISEASE
(15 minutes, ½" VHS)

Designed primarily for women, teenagers and health professionals. This video increases awareness of the bone disease, osteoporosis; what it is, who is at risk for it, and what can be done to prevent it. Cleared for use on nonprofit cable and educational TV.

SPICE OF LIFE
(14-¾ minutes, 16mm)

Designed for mature audiences. This film contains basic principles of healthful eating and practical suggestions for meal planning, grocery shopping and food storage and preparation. Cleared for use on nonprofit cable and educational television.

WHERE DOES MILK COME FROM?
(9 minutes, ½" VHS)

Designed for grades K through 5. Matthew and his grandfather visit a dairy farm and milk processing plant to find out where milk comes from and how it is processed.

Supplying children and adults with information on milk processing and its importance in their diets should result in more knowledgeable dairy product consumers.

If you would like further information or would like to borrow any of these materials, you may do so by contacting the ADADC at (717) 323-2552. ADADC is a dairy promotion organization representing 20,000 dairy producers from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

is no reason they should be exposed to this bacteria in their environment," said Shirk.

Farmers should aim for a somatic cell count of less than 200,000. Not only should they aim for it, according to Shirk, farmers should fight the disease until the herd reaches that level.

Necessary Precautions

——1. Teat dip all cows.
——2. Dry cow therapy for all quarters of all cows turned dry.
——3. Have milking equipment checked by a qualified repairman twice a year.
——4. Review milking practices and hygiene with a specialist. Don't use sponges, cloths, or high volume hoses to wash udders.
——5. Keep cow udders clean between milkings — free stalls, bedded areas, lots and pastures should be clean and dry. Fence off mud holes, swamps and ponds; fill holes at the gates and exists with gravel; and bed frequently to keep udders dry and clean.
——6. Avoid injury to udders especially teat ends.
——7. Avoid milking machine fall offs, squawks, and machine stripping.
——8. Cull chronic problem cows that don't respond to treatment.
——9. Isolate high cell count cows in a hospital group or milk high cell count cows last in stall barns.
—10. Identify the predominant organism causing the herd problem.

Cleaning-up a mastitis problem takes time, efffort and patience.

"You work on mastitis for six months and maybe you don't see much improvement. Well, you don't quit then, you review what you are doing, make changes and stay with it for anothersix months. You need the committment to get ahead."

"The time is now" Mellott says. "With the Chesapeake Bay agreement in place, we must begin to solve our waste problem before regulation puts us out of business."

Mellott was born into a farm family that raised a 700-pound rolling herd average Jersey herd from one foundation heifer calf and won the grassland award. After he graduated from Shippensburg University, he taught physics, chemistry and math at Central Fulton High School and coached the trach team to 23 major tournament wins. One of his stars was one of the nation's fastest miler and became an all-American with full scholarship to Penn State University. In the late '70s when fuel alcohol came to the front as a substitute for the high energy costs, Mellott started a personal research study visiting alcohol plants out west and managed the building and operation of a plant in southcentral Pennsylvania. From this practical experience, Mellott concluded that an alcohol plant cannot stand alone.

The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association came to similar conclusions from their efforts to develop processing plants for farm members. Fred Kerr, in PFA's marketing division, found that lack of operating capital and long turnaround time for cash flow made profit margins small in processing plants. "We learned that unlike the popular concept the middleman doesn't make all the profits," Keer said. "The middleman has the same type margins as the producer. We found that processing operators have difficulty standing alone, too.

Other factors also influenced the beginning of this proposed integrated, economic development system. PFA found that vehicles that haul grain from the west and cottonseed from the south must usually return empty. Excess manure, especially in southeast Pennsylvania, could be transported back on these empty vehicles if it were in a manageable form.

Mellott found that the incinerators for solid waste were considered liabilities rather than sources of energy. Waste trucked into landfills created problems of space and contaminated underground water sources.

In addition, Mellott found that agriculture was the major remaining large industry in Pennsylvania. The coal and steel industries are hurting. And Pennsylvania agriculture will fade away, too, if plans are not made for long-term growth, according to Mellott.

"We want to use the large population centers in Pennsylvania as a resource to agriculture," Mellott said. "These people provide a lot of garbage that can form the basis of energy for the complex and then provide close markets for the products produced by the agricultural synergism." After the glass and metals are separated at curbside before pickup, the burnables would be taken to the complex to produce steam. This steam would produce heat and electricity for the complex. From this power source the most economical products could be produced.

These products would be determined by the market (what the consumer wants) and by the location of the plant. For example, per capita consumption of mozzarella cheese has been increasing. A lot of heat is needed to produce this cheese and the whey by-product often causes problems as a waste product. With energy to burn from the city's waste, the complex would have the resource to make the cheese and turn the whey into fuel alcohol.

Other products that could be turned into alcohol in the complex would be potatoes and grains. The byproduct from the production of alcohol is animal feed--distillers grain and sweet stillage water that is 90 percent digestable. But an even better market for these high-protein feeds is the small pet food market. Canned pet food has 65 to 78 percent moisture and could be readily processed in the proposed complex. Add a meatpacking plant to the complex and you could have meat scraps to mix in with the distillers grains.

Excess heat could warm a greenhouse and carbon dioxide could help the plants grow. The manure from a feedlot could be used to produce methane. Manure from neighboring farms could be piped into the complex. The methane would provide additional energy to dry manure to be compressed into bales of pellets. The bales of manure could be transported to the southern cottonfields or the reclaimed strip mines of western Pennsylvania. The pellets could be bagged for use on lawns and gardens, back where the original garbage came from.

A fertilizer plant, a cannery, a commercial fish operation, a mill to produce cereals or a plant to produce fructose sugar for the soda industry would all have a likely place in this integrated complex. Vegetables and cut flowers could also be produced and kiln-dried lumber would keep the furniture manufacturing business in Pennsylvania.

Right now a corp group of individuals is acting as the catalyst to bring together funds for the feasibility study. "We need to get started now," Mellott said. "We are being overrun by our own garbage. And we have a situation where regulations may force things upon agriculture that could change the whole economy of Pennsylvania."

"Like my former track star, agriculture is Pennsylvania's star economic player. I want to build on that star and create an economic winner based on agriculture that reaches out to benefit all segments of people in Pennsylvania. With food and products economically produced close to home, jobs are created. And new and revitalized businesses can grow because they have their roots in this kind of a complex," Mellott said.

Our 81st Year Serving The Community

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

- Samuel H. Long, Jr., 18, R3 Manheim won the grand championship in 4-H Baby Beef showmanship at the Farm Show.

He finished first also in the Angus class showmanship and won a showbox from the Pennsylvania Angus Breeders' Assn.

Top Shorthorn showman, Terry Shaffner, 16, Oak Hall Station, Centre county, won a showbox given by Pennsylvania Shorthorn Breeders' Assn.

Two summer yearling heifers in the Angus show at Harrisburg last week, entered by George E. Allen and B.G. Byars, attracted little attention placing only third and fifth.

- Prime beef sold high at Harrisburg Friday as 122 head of 4-H steers averaged 33.57 cents a pound. The Chicago high Friday was 31 cents.

This average was 3½ cents greater than the 1957 average.

- Some 175 county vegetable growers heard the pros and cons of irrigation discussed Tuesday at a meeting held at the Guernsey Sales Pavilion.

Amos H. Funk, R1 Millersville, chairman of a panel discussion on the subject, said that irrigation is enjoying a tremendous gain throughout the nation. He cited figures showing that since 1950 the use of irrigation in Lancaster County has grown by some 771 per cent. The total acres under irrigation now, he said amount to 3,342 as compared to 433 in 1950.

- The Grand Champion pen of 4-H lambs, three Southdowns shown by J. David Lapp, R1 Bareville, sold for $1.25 a pound Friday at the Farm Show.

The lambs, weighing a total of 24 pounds, were bought by Economy Meat Market, York. Last year's 4-H grand champion pen sold for a dollar a pound.

Garner Speaks At Berks Dairy Day

READING — Sub-clinical mastitis is an invisible thief that robs dairymen of thousands of dollars every year, according to Dr. Charles Gardner, a veterinarian and farm columnist.

"A cow with a somatic cell count of 600,000 produces three pounds of milk a day less than she would if her cell count were at 150,000," Gardner told a group of about 100 dairymen Wednesday at the annual Berks County Dairy Day. Gardner, a graduate of the Cornell School of Veterinary Medicine, has a practice in Ackermanville, Pa.

Dairy Day is sponsored each year by Berks County Extension. Gardner's appearance at the educational event was sponsored by the Agribusiness Lending Department of Meridian Bank. Meridian also used the occasion to formally launch the "Ag Letter," a quarterly publication which will go to farmers and agribusinessmen in the 10 counties of Southeast Pennsylvania.

Gardner said sub-clinical mastitis -- the kind that can't be seen -- costs dairymen much more than the diseases clinical form, which is readily evident in milk from afflicted cows.

"A realistic goal for a somatic cell count is 150,000," said Gardner. "Herds do achieve this goal, and your herds can, too. If your cell count is 300,000, you might think you're doing a pretty good job, and you are.

"But each cow is giving you a pound and a half less a day than she would be producing at a cell count of 150,000. At a cell count of 600,000, your cows are producing three pounds less a day than they could be."

In a 60-cow herd, Gardner pointed out, three pounds of milk per cow per day translates into $7,200 a year.

Gardner asked his listeners to call out the causes of mastitis. They responded with: Stress. Bacteria. Equipment. Injuries. Weather. Environment. Even "people" were listed as a cause.

Gardner raised a laugh -- one of many -- when he said, "It's been said that mastitis is a disease of people that shows up in their cows."

Mastitis can be triggered whenever bacteria enter the teat canal, he said. Damp weather, dirty housing and poor sanitation in the milking parlor can all contribute. He told the dairymen they should wash their cows' udders with clean towels -- one towel per cow. Udders should be dried after they're washed and before the milkers are attached. He advocated a pre-milking teat dip in herds with mastitis problems, and a post-milking dip in all herds.

He also stressed the importance of keeping milking equipment in top working order.

Gardner's mastitis talk was one of two he gave on Wednesday. He also talked about the use of animals records. Others speakers for the day, and their topics, included:

Clyde Myers, Berks County Agent - Health management of dairy herd replacements.

Dr. Larry Hutchinson, Penn State Extension Veterinarian - Vaccination programs for today's dairy herd; New respiratory diseases.

Dave Swarts, Chester County Extension Agent - New tax law considerations for the dairy herd and crop farmer.

Dr. Lynn Sammons, Willow Creek Animal Hospital - What is really the problem.

Dr. Charles Gardner, center, was a guest speaker at Wednesday's Berks County Dairy Day, held in the Berks County Agricultural Center. Gardner's appearance was sponsored by the Agribusiness Lending Department of Meridian Bank. With Gardner are Meridian lenders Douglas Darling, left, and Blaine Fessler.

RCMA Reaches Agreements With Milk Dealers, Drop Lawsuits

BATAVIA, NY — Officials at the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency Inc. announced today agreements have been reached with Sunnydale Farms Inc. of Brooklyn; Boice Brothers Dairy Inc. of Kingston, N.Y.; and Mohawk Dairy of Amsterdam, N.Y. The three milk dealers have paid premiums owed RCMA and will provide data to the organization so that it can accurately pay its members who ship milk to the companies.

According to William Zuber, president of RCMA, Sunnydale, Boice Brothers and Mohawk Dairy have issued checks to RCMA covering premiums owed the organization for RCMA members' milk and agreed to cooperate with RCMA in the future. The agreement calls for RCMA to drop lawsuits against the trio filed in New York State Supreme Court on Dec. 18.

"We're pleased that after further negotiations with Sunnydale, Boice Brothers and Mohawk Dairy we have reached agreements. RCMA has the cooperation of the vast majority of milk dealers in the northeast. Because of the unity of our members, we were able to convince these three dealers of the importance of RCMA premiums to dairymen," Zuber said.

The agreements with the three milk dealers mark the second major positive piece of news for northeast dairy farmers in as many weeks, Zuber said. On Jan. 7, RCMA released a joint statement with Kraft Inc. and Pollio Dairy that it had reached an agreement with those two companies regarding the payment of premiums due for RCMA members milk.

The joint statement said: "Recognizing the farmers' valid financial needs, Kraft and Pollio will participate in RCMA's Class 1 milk over-order premium program." As part of the agreement, RCMA agreed not to impose over-order premiums on Class 2 for five years or until a national Class 2 premium is established. "Kraft, Pollio and RCMA are pleased that negotiations have successfully concluded to the mutual benefit of all parties," the statement concluded.

"These are major victories for dairymen and anyone who relies on a healthy northeastern agricultural economy for their income. We've shown the strength of dairy farmers working together. We still have a lot of work to do to secure the financial outlook for family farms, but these agreements are vital indications we're moving in the right direction," Zuber said.

RCMA will now turn its attention to holdout milk dealer Farmland Dairies Inc. of Wallington, N.J. A lawsuit is pending against the dealer, which collects milk from farms in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Zuber also noted that RCMA has notified Farmland that it plans to begin diverting milk from the company unless the milk dealer cooperates with the RCMA program.

Sire Power Has Increased Income, Patronage Refund

BY
EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG WEST — At the annual meeting of Sire Power Inc. here Tuesday, president Gary Rickard reported total income revenues of $13,871,995, a seven percent increase in 1987 over 1986. In addition, patronage refunds of $429,711 are to be distributed to members.

"Our cooperative is in an excellent financial situation," Richard said. "Our long-term debt is nil. And we now have a mini station that provides new facilities suitable to accommodate some of the health requirements for foreign markets. We do need to be aware that the cow population is getting smaller and foreign markets are not going to buy genetics when they don't need them. So while we have had record years back to back, we may need to diversify in the future."

DuWayne Kutz, general manager, reported a successful operating year that has become a tradition at Sire Power. "However, a successful year is even more meaningful," Kutz said, "when we consider the economic conditions of the U.S. and the world agricultural community, especially the dairy sector."

Kutz reported a six percent dollar sales volume growth or $701,900 more sales than the previous fiscal year. Unit sales also showed an increase of nine percent or 108,000 additional units sold.

"Our greatest areas of dollar sales growth were through our international division and non-member areas," Kutz said. "Our continuing goal at Sire Power will be to provide you the member-owners with a pricing structure whose main consideration is to benefit you with increased genetic quality at reasonable prices."

The cooperative honored retiring directors Harold Lesher Bernville, Berks County and Gerald Parker, Liberty in Tioga County. A long-time employee James Peifer was given a watch and the Quarter Century Award from the National Association of Animal Breeders.

FEEDING SEMINAR

Thursday, January 28, 1988
11 AM - 2 PM

Location: White Horse Fire Hall, White Horse, PA
Featuring: DR. RONALD DUBBE
"Grain Brain" Inventor

GRAIN BRAIN
MULTIFEEDER BY STARLINE

Feed Them Day And Night

"Slugging the rumen with large amounts of grain — no matter whether it's cob corn, high moisture shelled corn or high moisture ear corn — causes acid buildup and inhibits digestion for two, three, even four hours afterward," Dubbe cautions.

Excessive grain feeding is the hidden culprit behind many nagging problems such as low butterfat test, appetite loss, rumenitis and rumen ulcers, ketosis, displaced abomasums and lameness. Imagine how a jumbo-sized case of heartburn feels and you'll understand why even reproductive performance slips when cows consume too much grain.

Better rumen health translates into many benefits for dairy farmers, particularly increased milk production and persistency. "When dairymen switch from feeding twice a day to four times daily, they typically see a 2- to 5-lb. increase in production/cow," Dubbe says. "Usually, this increase occurs because the rumen can digest grain and forage more efficiently."

DAIRYMEN EVERYWHERE ARE FALLING IN LOVE.

The new Grain Brain feeding system has caught on in a hurry! That's because it allows you to take advantage of the benefits of multiple feeding (increased milk production lower feed costs higher butterfat, improved herd health) with only a modest investment and no increase in labor. Here's how it works. When you do your regular feeding you also fill your Grain Brain dispensers. At the time you have preset into Grain Brain the dispensers drop feed for each cow's next feeding. That means you can go from two- or three-time to four- or six-time-per-day feeding with no extra labor!

For complete details see us soon. We have a brochure and work sheet that will help us show you exactly what a Grain Brain system can do for you. You'll love it!

USDA Announces Dairy Regulations

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture today announced regulations implementing the dairy assessments mandated by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987. The regulations become effective Jan. 1, 1988.

The 1987 Act amended the Agricultural Act of 1949 to mandate a reduction of 2½ cents per hundredweight in the price received by producers for milk produced in the 48 contiguous states and marketed for commercial use during calendar year 1988.

Generally, persons paying producers for milk will be required to make the reductions and remit the funds represented by the reductions to the Commodity Credit Corporation. In some cases, producers will be required to remit the funds directly to CCC. USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service will administer the program for CCC.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Editor:

We went to the Farm Show on Monday, our enjoyable day was marred by the ignorance of illiteracy of a few animal exhibitors. It's bad enough when 'city slickers' walk into a barn with a lighted cigarette or cigar--what do they know about barn fires and how easily hay and straw are ignited--but when farmers who are grooming and cleaning up after their animals are at the same time puffing away THERE IS NO EXCUE FOR SUCH STUPIDITY!!! What a fine example they set for all the young people who were viewing the exhibits! If these smokers want to kill themselves, they should do it in private and not involve so many innocent people and animals. I don't want to think about the panic that would ensue from a fire in the exhibitor barns at the Farm Show.

With huge "NO SMOKING" signs painted on the walls and smaller cardboard signs posted all around, only an IDIOT would still smoke! Why doesn't the Farm Show security force stationed in these barns enforce these rules?

We witnessed a security man scream at a woman for touching the plastic at the canned good exhibit--saying if the plastic would tear, the jars would get dusty. WOW! It seems someone's priorities are mixed up. This man was stationed in the wrong place--next year please assign him to the livestock barns where the screaming needs to be done!!!

Maple Syrup Producers Meeting

The Northeastern Pennsylvania Maple Syrup Producers' Association annual meeting and dinner is scheduled for Monday, January 25, from 10:00 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. at the Pleasant Valley Grange Hall, Route 191, Honesdale.

Ed Curtis, President, will conduct annual meeting business as well as offer reports on recent happenings in the maple industry in Pennsylvania and other maple producing areas of the United States and Canada.

Ed will also have a report from the 1987 North American Maple Syrup Council annual meeting that was held in Duluth, Minnesota from October 22nd thru 24th. Also, a report from the 1988 Pennsylvania Farm Show maple products sales booth and the Pennsylvania Maple Syrup Producers' Council meeting will be featured.

Two speakers will be featured at this year's meeting. Gordon Conklin, editor of the "American Agriculturist" magazine will be the keynote speaker. Mr. Conklin's presentation is entitled "Hinge of History." It will cover a variety of topics including: the farm scene here in the United States and the East Coast, the national debt, protectionism, a view of the World around us, technological changes in agriculture, farm management, plus some timely comments and thoughts about maple syrup production, maple syrup and maple products, the growing problem of maple decline plus some comments on the economics and future of the maple industry here in the United States and Canada.

The other speaker will be a representative from the Leader Evaporator Co., Inc., St. Albans, Vermont. He will be explaining and demonstrating a reverse osmosis machine used for processing and concentrating maple sap. The machine has the capability to remove a large amount of water from the sap leaving a more concentrated sugar sap that will reduce boiling time and fuel consumption and costs.

A pancake, sausage, home fries, eggs, and maple syrup dinner will be served at 12:00 noon by members of the Pleasant Valley Grange. The cost of this dinner will be $5.00 per person and reservations for this dinner are needed. For more information and to make dinner reservations please call the Wayne County Extension Office. The number to call is 717-253-5970 ext. 114.

Dairy Co-Op Returns $2 Million In Bonuses To Farmers

Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative faced a turbulent marketplace in 1987, with more and more farmers leaving the business and competition for available milk supplies turning fierce, Eastern President R. LaVerne McCarty reported.

Even though that caused profits to drop, the co-op returned more money to its member-farmers in the form of cash bonuses than ever before, McCarty said.

The bonuses, or premiums, were above the government-regulated blend price that farmers receive for their milk, and totaled "approximately $2 million for Eastern's farmer-owners" in calendar 1987, Eastern General Manager Michael H. Donovan noted.

More than $250,000 of that amount was paid between Christmas and New Year's to 1,400 farmers who qualified for Eastern's Fall Premium Program. The fall premiums, Donovan said, successfully encouraged farmers to shift more milk production to the fall months, an historically low period for milk volumes, and helped the co-op to balance seasonal supplies for customers.

Unlike other premiums, which Eastern obtained from customers to pass directly to farmers, the fall premiums came out of Eastern's own coffers, and came close to matching its $300,000 refund to farmers in 1986 when the co-op had record profits.

"The past year has been difficult in terms of profitability," Donovan said. The co-op ended fiscal '87 with $233,000 in net proceeds, which were down from the record $631,000 in fiscal '86. Eastern's milk supplies were down 10 percent, largely due to the Whole Herd Buyout and other economic factors which encouraged farmers to leave dairying.

"But," Donovan continued, "what does make me happy is when I look at the monthly report which shows the cash premiums that we are returning to the farmer-members of Eastern Milk Producers. Quality premiums have been running in excess of $30,000 per month; protein premiums in excess of $25,000 per month, and other direct premiums over $100,000 per month."

He added: "Getting money to the farmers' bottom line is our most important job, and Eastern has never had a year where we have done a better job of doing exactly that."

McCarty and Donovan also noted that Eastern's Products Division was "growing in leaps and bounds."

The division, which is anticipating sales in excess of $8 million for the year, and operates six dairy stores in New York and Pennsylvania, and a bulk-buying service for rural customers in 11 states. Two of those stores opened for business in 1987 -- in Fulton, N.Y., and Washingtonville, PA.

Four more stores are on the drawing board for 1988, Donovan said.

Other highlights of 1987:

* Eastern's board elected a new president in October -- dairy farmer R. LaVerne McCarty of Forksville, PA. He succeeded Earl Forwood, another Pennsylvania farmer.

* Eastern's got out of the fluid bottling business in September when it sold its operation in Homer, N.Y. to Dairylea.

* Eastern honored its first-ever Quality Farmer of the Year -- the Karl Haslauer Farm of Munnsville, N.Y. It also named top quality farmers for New England and the Pennsylvania-and-South region -- Shelburne Farms of Shelburne, Vt., and the Richard Groover Farm of Canton, PA.

The dairy cooperative, with some 200 employees, owns or operates a number of facilities in the Northeast, in addition to the Products Division's retail stores.

It acquired two New York cheese plants -- in Waverly and Horseheads -- in 1982, and leased them to Leprino Foods, one of the nation's leading makers of mozzarella cheese, under a 20-year milk supply agreement.

The co-op also operates a state-of-the-art testing laboratory in Waverly; a New England office in Montpelier, Vt.; a butter/powder plant in Grover, Pa., and milk-receiving plants at Sunbury, Pa., Dover, Del., and Hinesburg, Vt.

Some 3500 member-farmers are spread across nine states -- Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

Renewed Hope, Stronger Faith And Deeper Love Come To The Schusters

BY SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, MD. — January is traditionally a time of resolutions and thanksgiving. For our family, 1988 brings renewed hope, a stronger faith in God and deeper love for each other. Survival of the past year has given us a new outlook on life as well.

Its difficult to talk about our struggle with cancer. But, with my husband, Chuck's, first blood detection test since his operations over the summer, scheduled to take place on January 26, I figure it wouldn't hurt to solicit a few thousand extra prayers for a clean report.

It was June 12, 1987. The last day of school had finally arrived. In my other life, when I'm not reporting on champion steers and waiting for the grand champ swine to pose in front of the little food dish for a photo, I teach Spanish to a different breed - eighth graders. I breathed a sigh of relief when the last student climbed on the bus, not to be seen again until September.

Meanwhile, Chuck, also a teacher, said his last goodbyes to his Vocational Agriculture students - at least until County Fair time. Being a Vo-Ag teacher and FFA advisor at Westminster High School relates to the operation at home. Chuck manages our family's beef cow-calf herd which usually totals approximately 40 to 50 head.

I hasten to add that teaching Spanish doesn't relate at all to the farming end of our lives. The only time it really came in handy was when we got a parts manual printed in Spanish - I was top dog that day.

The halls were silent and free of confusion. All the teachers at North Carroll Middle School were ready to dig into our farewell luncheon. On the way down the hall, I was paged - "Mrs. Schuster, you have a phone call."

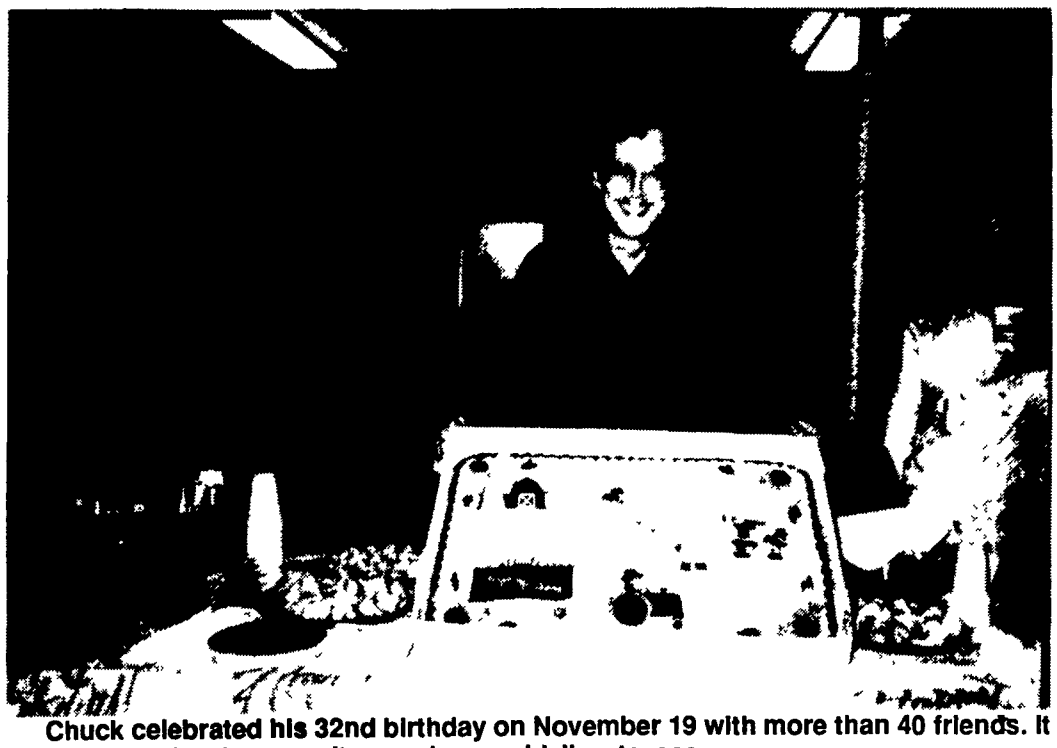
Thinking aloud I muttered to myself, "I wonder who that could be?" At the other end of the line was Chuck. "Hi. I'm in the emergency room at the hospital. They said something about cancer and doing an operation. But don't worry. Don't rush over. Finish your lunch and then come over."

"DON'T WORRY! I exclaimed. "Don't let them do anything 'till I get there," I commanded. Whether I hung up the phone, I'm not sure. My principal, Mr. Lambert called to me as I rushed out the doors "take it easy and drive carefully."

Our brand new pickup truck made record time to the hospital. Once there, I made my way past the cubicles that housed other people's tragedies to find Chuck laying on a guerney, dressed in one of those backless gowns. He was shivering from the cold and from the fear. He explained that he became violently ill during the morning and drove himself to the doctor's office. Our family doctor immediately referred him to the emergency room where the urological surgeon was waiting for him.

The doctor explained that the intense pain Chuck had suffered that morning came from a torsion of the testicle. The right testicle had twisted. After examination, he identified a hardness in the area as probably cancerous. "Twenty-five years of experience tells me this has to come out," said the doctor. "It should be done now, today."

He left us alone for a short time to discuss the matter. "CANCER." It's the scariest, ugliest word there is - especially when it's you or someone you love. We were overcome with shock. "How can this be? Cancer? But you're only 31," I reasoned. And we had just lost my mother to cancer. She had succumbed to the long, bitter battle and the hurt was still fresh in our minds and hearts. "It's not fair," I cried out in anger. Cancer doesn't discriminate. My mother was just 54 when she so courageously fought the battle. Its victims are young and old of all races. Here was a healthy, active, vivacious farmer, no stranger to physical labor, never a smoker or drinker, who had cancer - at 31. In the few moments we had, we decided that there was no alternative to surgery, in light of the explanations that the doctor had given us.



Chuck celebrated his 32nd birthday on November 19 with more than 40 friends. It was a birthday he wasn't sure he would live to see.

The ducklings that the Schusters raised during the summer were a diversion for all of them. Here Chuck shows one to Hawkie. Chuck lost about 15 pounds during his ordeal.

Sharon Schuster

It was noon. Chuck was scheduled for surgery at two o'clock. After we notified the insurance company, Chuck hopped down off of the guerney and started to get dressed. "I have to go back to school to finish my grades," he said.

"You're not going anywhere," interrupted the doctor. A phone call to notify Chuck's principal took care of that. And the news spread like wildfire.

Within moments, Joel Rosen, horticulture teacher and also advisor to the FFA, had arrived. He was a welcome sight in the midst of a morning full of confusion. The good friend that he is, Joel returned to school to put Chuck's grades on the report cards for him.

I said goodbye to Chuck at the operating room doors. The nurse showed me his room where I was to wait during the forty-five minute operation. I was alone with my thoughts. Putting aside the brave and confident face that I had worn for Chuck all morning, I cried.

All afternoon I could reach no one. Chuck's parents didn't know that their son was undergoing surgery, and that he probably had cancer. My father was probably out in the field mowing hay. He couldn't have known the turn of events to come.

Between phone calls I said many tearful prayers. By the time Chuck was coming out of the recovery room, I had been successful in reaching our families. Our fathers and Reverend Forsyth, our pastor, were in the room ready to see him.

The doctor reported that the tumor that they removed within the right testicle was indeed cancerous. But, until the lab report returned we wouldn't know what kind of cancer had invaded his body. Was it curable or deadly?

About two weeks passed. During his recovery at home, Chuck had been learning to adjust to a first floor existence - sleeping on the roll away bed and walking with the assistance of a cane. The four-inch incision made in his lower abdomen affected his leg muscles. It was difficult for him to walk.

Now it's back to business. Chuck and his dad herd Lillibet back into the barn.

Hope, Stronger Faith

"Do you think I'll ever walk normally again?," he would ask. "I wonder if I'll ever be able to sit on the tractor seat?" Meanwhile, the farm work had not just conveniently stopped to wait for the answer. We were smack dab in the height of haymaking season. Thanks to God for the friends who rallied to our sides to keep the business going.

Joel returned to help with hay, along with other teacher friends, Dennis Klima and Bobby Foster. We all took turns unloading and stacking and sweating in the mow. Daddy rode the tractor and Chuck worked from his command post in the living room. Chuck's Vo-Ag students also put in some long hard days when others were not available.

The lab report was not as good as we had expected. Chuck didn't have the encapsulated form of cancer known as semi-noma. It was suspected that it may have spread. The surgeon referred us to the University of Maryland Cancer Research Center to work with nationally recognized oncologists.

It was scary. Chuck's parents, Daddy and I all accompanied him on this and subsequent visits to the ninth floor. While we waited for the routine check-in, we were surprised to see that despite the doomed looking situations around us, people in wheelchairs and those with no hair and thin as bean poles, were happy and smiling, at least on the outside. We soon discovered that this was a nice place to be if you had to be there. The staff was pleasant, accommodating and understanding.

Chuck was nervous and couldn't sit still while waiting for his first consultation. He managed to corner the doctor in the hallway and asked him, "What kind of cancer do I have?" Straightforwardly, the doctor answered, "Liver."

That sudden sinking feeling overcame me as I tried to fight back tears. I saw the family whispering among themselves as the doctor directed us into a consultation area.

His manner was calming and sincere. The doctor said that according to the CAT scan report that we had hand delivered that morning, the cancer had spread to the liver. In terms of survival rate, that's a 30 to 60 per cent chance. He fielded our questions and excused himself for about half an hour. Because the report had come in with us, the doctors had not had a chance to review it for themselves and took this time to do so.

There we sat, in the sterile white room, alone again with our thoughts. We fell into each other's arms and cried. We both knew what liver cancer meant. "Now its in God's hands," we agreed. I continued to pray for a miracle. But what could possibly happen now? The CAT Scan had recorded spots on his liver. It was on film. They were there. Cancer of the liver seemed to be inevitable. We decided that now we must deal with what time we had left together.

The doctors returned to the room. "We believe that the spots on your liver are cysts," reported the doctor. Chuck's mouth dropped open and his eyes widened with amazement. "Are you serious?" he asked. With that he jumped up off the examination table, gown flapping in the back, and threw his arms around the doctor and gave him a kiss.

I cried tears of relief. A miracle had truly happened. What else could it be? The spots were there. The diagnosis had been made.The prognosis had been given. The experts had changed their minds. In answer to our prayers, God gave us no more than we could bear.

But, we weren't out of the woods yet. Chuck would have to undergo one more operation, retroperitoneal lymph node dissection. It was the only way to determine whether the cancer had metastisized to the lymph nodes or to the liver.

Chuck continued to recuperate at home. The farm work continued with the help of friends and family like Raymond Lippy, the Hofmeisters and Ann John. Daddy was raising orphaned ducks that he recovered from the hay field. They proved to be a great diversion for our heavyladen minds and overworked bodies.

We checked into the University of Maryland Hospital for the next surgery on July 30. The anesthesiologist visited, as did the other staff members involved. The dermatologist was called in to inspect a rash on his chest. They scrubbed for the operation and sent us home. Chuck had poison ivy. Chuck's surgeon, Dr. Kalash, reassured him; "Go home Charlie. God has a reason for this."

Chuck had prepared himself mentally to deal with the impending operation. And to be sent home because of poison ivy threw him off. "I can't go through this again," he said. But he did. And the time came again to check into the hospital on August 12.

This time it was a go. Daddy and I were in the room early to accompany him down to the operating room at 6 a.m. It was like an airport there, with guerneys full of drowsy patients stacked three deep around the perimeter of the waiting area. At 7 a.m. they wheeled him in, and we went back to his room to wait.

Chuck's parents and his brother, Steve, joined us in the wait. We talked and reminisced and said lots of prayers as five hours creeped by. Finally, a phone call from Dr. Kalash. "We're closing him up now. He came through the operation very well, and it looks like all of the nodes that we removed were clean." Of course we had to wait for the lab report for the final say.

We were all overjoyed. Again the relief valves were opened and tears of joy flooded our faces. Thank God. Chuck returned to the room. He stayed in the hospital for about a week. His incision runs the length of his chest to his abdomen. Dr. Kalash's skilled hand made a neat cut that has started to fade already.

Chuck made steady progress through the week, learning to breathe deeply and to walk carefully. On the day of checkout, the entourage of resident doctors and students made their routine morning check. As they left, one stuck his head back in the door, and announced, "By the way, your lab report was clean. No more cancer."

Chemotherapy as a routine cleanup measure was at first suggested by the oncologists. The threat of this ugly cure loomed over Chuck like a heavy, dark cloud. Recuperating at home, he feared the worst, and dreaded the sickness that accompanies the cure.

August was coming to a close. It was time to start thinking about school once again. With chemotherapy facing him, Chuck would not be able to return until late fall. On subsequent visits to the Cancer Center, it was determined that Chuck would not have to receive chemotherapy. The doctors elected to monitor his blood every three months for the next two years, and act only if the cancer "markers" become elevated.

Again, an answer to many prayers. Our friend, Doris Crawmer had put Chuck on the church's prayer chain from day one. By the time he was put on prayer chains in churches of all our family members and friends, God must have been hearing about Chuck Schuster every day, all day.

Chuck returned to school at the end of October, weak, but alive. We had a surprise birthday party for him on November 19 to celebrate his 32nd birthday - one which he wasn't sure he would live to see. Six months after this ordeal began, Chuck is functioning almost normally. He fatigues more quickly than he used to, and he does take time to rest and eat right. To look at him, you would never suspect that he had dealt with cancer, two operations and the threat of death, just months ago.

Now we face the first of a series of blood tests which can detect the presence of active cancer cells in his body. Our family has witnessed a miracle, and we are thankful for that. We firmly believe that God does not give one more than he can bear. Chuck is living proof.

Chicken: Good Choice For Nutrition, Economy And Taste

It's no secret that chicken is the least costly and the most nutritious of meats. Chicken has a protein content that no other meat exceeds and few equal. It is protein of the highest quality because it contains all the essential amino acids, the chemical units of which proteins are made.

Signs of high quality chicken are a plump body, which is an indication of meatiness, and clean skin free of bruises and discoloration.

Color preference in chicken varies in different parts of the country, ranging from white to deep yellow, depending on the feed used. Skin color is not a measure of nutritional value, flaor, tenderness or fat content. All chicken meat should be bright in color and not gray or pasty-looking.

One of the best boons to the homemaker is the hundreds of ways chicken can be prepared and served.

Dairy Chicken

Yield: Four servings.

6 chicken breasts - skinned & boned
3 chicken bouillon cubes
¼ cup boiling water
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 sticks butter
⅓ cup vegetable oil
1 pound mushrooms - cleaned & sliced
1 bunch green onions, chopped (include half of green stem)
8 ounces Mozzarella cheese - sliced
⅓ cup white wine or apple juice
⅔ cup heavy cream

Dissolve chicken bouillon cubes in ¼ cup boiling water. Set aside to cool. On a plate, mix together flour, poultry seasoning, paprika, salt and pepper. One at a time, place chicken breasts between sheets of wax paper and beat to tenderize. Cut chicken breasts into 2-3 inch pieces. Dredge chicken into flour mixture. In skillet, begin with 2-3 tablespoons butter and melt with 1 tablespoon vegetable oil over low heat. Lightly fry chicken until light golden in color (they should be white inside when cut into). Continue adding more butter and oil as needed. When finished, set chicken aside and keep warm. Saute mushrooms and green onions in butter and oil. Set aside. In casserole, layer chicken pieces, sauteed mushrooms and onions, and slices of Mozzarella cheese. Combine chicken bouillon, white wine and cream. Pour into casserole. Heat casserole in 300° oven until cheese is melted.

Preparation time: 40 minutes.

ANSWER - Mrs. Ray Seidel, Lenhartsville, requested recipes using dried soybeans from the field. Thanks to an anonymous reader who wrote to inform us that the soybeans grown in large quantities on farms are not for human consumption. She said they are toxic and can make you very ill.

She explained that one should use the edible kind for cooking. Those must be soaked like dried beans and then prepared like limas, baked beans or boiled and then add crumbled fried bacon. Some grocery and health stores sell them. Thanks Mrs. Eldon R. Martin, Abbottstown, Althea Fetherolf, Hamburg; Mrs. Jay Strite, Waynesboro; and Ida Keeny, New Freedom; for sharing your recipes for soybeans.

ANSWER - Mrs. Sensenig, Ephrata, asked if any readers use vinegar as a fabric softner. Thanks Marie Cairns, Honeybrook, who said she fills the cup container in her washer with white vinegar. She said it makes her wash and her hands soft like velvet, but she isn't sure how much it helps with static cling.

ANSWER - Mrs. Eldon R. Martin, Abbottstown, requested a recipe for yogurt that does not separate while it is being made. Thanks Sarah Beiler and Mrs. Benjamin F. Beiler of Christiana for sharing your recipe.

Yogurt

2 quarts milk
1½ cup instant dry milk
½ to ¾ cup non-instant dry milk
4 tablespoons yogurt

Stir and heat slowly until 115 degrees, pour into jars. Let set in a warm place or in water 115 degrees about 3 hours. Chill before serving.

ANSWER - Anna Mae Harmon of Harrisonburg, Va. requested a recipe for onion jelly. Thanks Grace Ikeler, Bloomsburg, for sharing one. Grace warns that onion jelly making is a very odorous process which should only be done when windows can be opened for air circulation.

Onion Jelly

1 pound red onion
1 cup white grape juice
½ cup vinegar
1 package powdered pectin
3½ cup sugar

Either put onion through food grinder or food processor, using coarse blade, or finely chop onion. Make 2 cups including juice.

Combine chopped onion, onion juice and grape juice in saucepan. Bring the mixture to a boil and then remove from heat.

Strain the mixture through cloth, set in a colander, saving the liquid. Measure the strained onion liquid and add water to make three cups.

In a large kettle, combine strained mixture, vinegar and pectin. Cook and finish according to the packaged pectin directions.

Ladle into hot jelly jar. Seal and process for 10 minutes. Makes 5 half pints.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Before you go out and buy all new dishes for your microwave oven, check your cupboards.

You probably have several oven-proof casseroles, which are also fine for microwave cooking. You probably have other standard clear Pyrex or oven-proof glass dishes too - like custard cups and measuring cups, pie plates or round, square and rectangular glass dishes. Most any one of these — as long as it has no metal trim — can be used for microwave cooking.

Check the bottom of each dish for the words "microwave safe." If in doubt about a dish, do the following dish test. Set the empty dish in your microwave. Place a microwave-safe measure filled with one cup of water alongside it. Microwave on High for one minute. If the dish stays cool and the water gets warm, the dish is microwave-safe and may be used for cooking. If the dish gets barely warm, it is best for just microwave heating. If the dish gets hot, do not use it in your microwave.

A basic list of microwave cooking necessities includes a bacon/meat rack, 1- and 2-quart casseroles with covers, and a couple of Pyrex measures in 1-cup, 2-cup and 4-cup sizes. Also very handy are microwave-safe spoons, a deep 2-quart measure (also called a batter bowl), and a round microwave-safe tray.

If you really cook in your microwave and/or have a large family, you probably will want 3-quart casseroles with covers. For practicality, choose a deep, dish-shaped casserole rather than a shallow rectangular 3-quart dish (9x13-inch). If you just reheat individual meals or cook for one or two, you'll like the small casseroles, bowls, meat racks and other pieces available now.

If you have a convection/microwave oven, you'll certainly want microwave dishes that can also be used in conventional and convection ovens.

After you've bought the basics you may want to add additional pieces of microwave cookware, depending on your eating and cooking preferences. Browning skillets, popcorn poppers, coffeemakers, pressure cookers, candy and meat thermometers are some of the other equipment you may want.

If you like to cook in big batches and freeze for later, or if you don't like washing dishes, you'll want some "cook and store" containers with tight storage covers that can go from freezer (or refrigerator) to microwave (and conventional/convection oven).

When buying, be sure to read labels. "Cook and store" microwave containers vary greatly. Many of the newer light-weight plastic dishes look and feel the same as some storage-only containers. While most of the new containers can be used in microwave and conventional ovens, some are only for microwave or some parts are only for storage. In most brands the cover is for storage, so it must be loosened for microwave cooking and is not safe for the conventional/convection oven. Most are dishwasher safe, but some covers are top-rack dishwasher safe only.

Before using a new microwave dish or accessory, read directions carefully. For future reference, file directions with your microwave recipes. It's especially important to save directions for browning skillets, popcorn poppers and other specialized cooking equipment.

With the wide variety of microwave dishes available now, it may be hard to save all labels, so for convenience, I like dishes that have directions printed on the outside bottoms. On the dishes that don't, I write on directions with a freezer marker pen — such as, "not for oven," "cover loosely," "not for fatty-surgary foods," or "cover not for micro." This not only reminds me, but reminds the rest of my microwaving family how to properly use these dishes and covers.

Today's recipes use common cooking dishes that you probably had in your kitchen before you even thought of buying a microwave oven. Tuna Vegetable Casserole is cooked quickly in a 2-quart casserole, while Pineapple Eggnog Pudding microwaves with little fuss in a glass, heatproof 1-quart measuring cup.

Tuna Vegetable Casserole

1 package (7 ounces) 1½ cups shell macaroni
1¼ cups frozen California-style vegetables
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
¾ cup milk
1 can (15-16 ounces) chow mein or Chinese vegetables, drained
1 can (6-7 ounces) tuna, drained
½ teaspoon onion powder
½ teaspoon celery salt
Salt and pepper (optional)

Fill microwave-safe 2-quart casserole half full of hot tap water. (If desired, add salt). Cover and microwave (High) 6 to 7 minutes or until water boils. Stir in macaroni. Microwave (High), uncovered, 5 to 7 minutes or until macaroni is almost tender. Place frozen vegetables in colander; pour hot macaroni and water over vegetables; drain well. Return macaroni and vegetables to casserole. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover and microwave (High) 6 to 8 minutes or until hot, stirring once. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Each serving — ¼ of recipe: 303 calories, 20g protein, 8g fat, 38g carbohydrate, 1,005mg sodium, 30mg cholesterol.

Pineapple Eggnog Pudding

2-3 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ cups eggnog
1 can (8 ounces) crushed pineapple, drained
½ teaspoon vanilla or ¼ teaspoon vanilla and ¼ teaspoon rum flavoring

In a microwave-safe 1-quart measure, stir together sugar, cornstarch and spices. Gradually stir in eggnog. Microwave (High), uncovered, 2 minutes. Stir well. Continue microwaving (High) 1½ to 2½ minutes or until mixture starts to boil and is thick. Stir in drained pineapple and vanilla. Pour into 4 dessert dishes. Serve warm or cold. Makes 4 servings.

Variation: Chill pudding and serve over pieces of angel food cake or squares of plain yellow cake.

Each serving: 203 calories, 4g protein, 7g fat, 32g carbohydrate, 53mg sodium, 56mg cholesterol.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards-

Joyce Bupp

Most of us have seen that TV commercial.

It touts a cereal product that supposedly supplies adult nutrition needs, while also catering to the "little kid" inside of each of us.

Is there a "little kid" inside of you?

Do you enjoy toy farm equipment as much as the humongous field size stuff? Is it impossible for you to resist climbing into the cab of a giant combine or top-of-the-line new tractor at some place like the Farm Show, and letting your imagination run wild for a couple of brief moments.

Can you see snow as something on which to run sleds, snowmobiles or skis, instead of just a pain-in-the-neck inconvenience that makes extra work at the barn?

Do you ever steal a moment to look for four-leaf clovers, objects in the bizarre shapes of the clouds, or take your shoes off to dabble your toes in a creek?

If the answers to all -or even any of - the above are affirmative.....well, good for you.

No doubt if we all took a little more time to let that "little kid" direct what we do, the world might be a happier place.

The "little kid" inside of me wages a constant war to take over.

My internal "little kid" would be perfectly happy forever hacking through life dressed in comfy old sneakers, faded jeans, and a shapeless sweatshirt. Doing battle with this little kid on occasion, however, is that classic adult female stereotype image: Let's go shopping!

Adult knowledge of good nutrition, fiber needs, and weight-watching hammer into my head the good sense of having a mid-morning snack of a glass of milk and an apple. Then, that doggone "little kid" whips past, shoves the milk into the microwave, adds chocolate, and sips the piping hot cocoa with a peanut butter and jelly sandwich on the side. We compromise and finish off with the apple.

While holiday shopping, the adult in me by-passed the chance to buy an adorable stuffed teddy bear for next-to-nothing with another purchase. But, the "little kid" in me took control of my feet, sent them back through the same store's checkout line to pick up an item I'd forgotten, and insisted we take home a teddy bear. After all, we might need an extra, inexpensive gift for someone.

That same little kid keeps eyeing little red sports cars, checking out and comparing models we pass on the road while driving our white generic automobile with more than 63,000 miles now on the odometer. But the adult retaliates with reminders about poor gas mileage, high insurance rates, impracticality of such a vehicle, and "good grief, what would people think" clinchers.

Plus, the farmer aims me one of those "I can't believe you'd even consider such a thing" looks.

And it's the little kid in me that gathers tidbits of carrots, lettuce, celery and apples for the guinea pig, now happily living in the greenhouse, even though he's eaten off a palm tree, one very large geranium, and several spider plants that belong to my adult.

That same little kid recently stole time out of an adult's very busy schedule to track down a pair of cross-country ski boots. A neighbor's dog barked with hilarious laughter the entire time that little kid in a body which resembles my over-40 one practiced on the hill in the lower alfalfa stand.

One comfort: if that "little kid" is hauled to the hospital with a broken leg, at least she'll have a teddy bear to take along for security.

Some of us just never completely grew out of being "little kids."

Nor do we plan to.

What's In A Name

HARRISBURG — Todd Rabert of Mechanicsburg peruses books on baby names. Lona Rader strives for something "different." Others rely on "whatever comes to mind". The dairy cows at the 72nd Pennsylvania Farm Show have a variety of names — from the traditional to the exotic.

One Montgomery County 4-H club is showing Surprise, whose birth on Christmas day was just that — a surprise. They have a milking shorthorn named "Button", who comes from a line of "sewing" names, including Crewel and Satin. Also visiting Farm Show from Montgomery County are Vanna and Peanut.

In naming dairy cows, it's common to incorporate the sire and dam's names — Amy marauder Anne or Norich Bell Rita, for example. In some cases, breed societies specify a maximum number of letters the name can contain. Usually the limit is 26 to 32 letters.

Lona Rader of Homestead Acres, Connoquenessing, has an Ayrshire named Sadie. "But I don't call her that," she explains. "I call her Varmint because when she was a calf she drank Pepsi and ate watermelon, peanuts, grapes — all kinds of foods normal cows don't eat." Rader also has two Holsteins, sisters, named Cagney and Lacy.

Holsteins from JoBo Farm in Gettysburg include Preemie (who arrived earlier than expected), Orbit, Hoagie and Tommy. Tommy's real name is apparently Petunia, but the nickname was needed to avoid confusion with another Petunia they had at the time.

At Summit Vista Farm in Huntingdon County, 11-year-old Monica Goshorns is in charge of most of the naming. She usually picks out a name that starts with the same letter as the dam's name. Her favorites include Anita, Margo, Cherry Sundae, Cherry Soda, and Cherry Pie.

Then there's Mar-De Farms in Newburg. "We just name them whatever comes to mind," says Mark Deaven. Rainy was born on a rainy day, and Poinsettia takes after her mother, Rose. But Lucy, Toni and Jodi's names just happened to be the owner's whim.

These Farm Women Tell Their Views

Do Farm Wives Have It Easier Or Harder Than The Generation Before Them?

Thelma Ott lives on a three-generation farm in Bangor (Northampton County). Asked if farm wives have it easier or harder, Thelma doesn't even pause, but blurts out, "Harder." She explains that although farm women of the past had more difficult physical labor, they did not need to deal with the stress of handling business, federal red tape and the technical aspects of farming. She stresses that it is harder to stay in agriculture now and put up with the urban sprawl and complaints from neighbors. She said, "In my lifetime, my feelings towards our farming operation have changed from pleasant to unpleasant. There are too many stresses that detract from the good points."

"Definitely harder," Fran Bushong, Lebanon, stated. "I just got our milk check—a prime example of why it is harder. The milk prices keep going down and the price of everything else keeps going up. You have to push a pencil like crazy just to calculate how to make ends meet."

Fran said not only do farm wives need to be out working side by side with their husbands, but they also need to be a stronger support for their husbands than was necessary in times past. She believes that in past generations, farmers knew if they worked hard, they'd get something out of it. "But now, the federal people get their hands into everything and it's so frustrating and devastating because hard work and a good attitude doesn't pay the bills."

"It should be easier," Marie Baughman of Shippensburg said. All the modern equipment and labor-saving devices inside the home and on the farm give farm women a different life than she was used to before she and her husband retired from farming. She noted, "Equipment is larger and more sophisticated and has eliminated some chores. But today's farmer usually has more cows and more acres." She added that smaller families, wash and wear fabrics, microwaves and automatic washers and dryers give farm wives more time. On the other hand she believes many are involved in more community and church activities and jobs off the farm. She said, "Each generation reflects the world in which they live." She believes farm wives find well-kept lawns and flower beds rewarding. She said, "This is the generation of computers, fast food and do your own thing. But it still holds true that a women's work is never done."

Marie Baughman

Nan Bushong

Jeanette Brooks, Parkesburg, admits that although things are supposed to be easier, she still finds it stressful to work on the farm while watching her three-year-old. Jeanette and her husband are one couple who farm differently than the average family. They live several miles from the family farm and Jeanette travels to the farm every day to milk and feed cows. Her husband is a Surge salesman and since Jeanette doesn't return home from milking until 7 p.m., he fends for himself during the evening meal. When you love farming like Jeanette does, you learn to live with the inconveniences because the pluses outweigh the negatives.

Erma Kauffman, Cochranville, believes farm wives have things easier today than ever before because they don't need to milk by hand. She recalls, "I used to get up early every morning and milk plus help with hay making and care for the family. Now that her children are grown, Erma works parttime as a tour guide and as a Tupperwear dealer. "I don't have more time than I did before," she said, "but I couldn't work away if we hadn't installed a pipeline in our dairy." She believes farming has changed a lot in her lifetime, but it hasn't eliminated the stress. "It's a different type of stress," she said.

BACK HOME

By Michelle S. Rodgers

Berks Extension

Home Economist

At almost six months of age, our little one no longer classifies as a newborn. Her little personality is really beginning to blossom and she is becoming a part of our daily routine or maybe we are really becoming a part of her daily routine. Regardless, the complexity of relationships is no longer only a marriage relationship but also a parent-child relationship.

Author, S. Adams Sullivan, compares the link between a parent and a child to that of a marriage, in that in both types of relationships, commitment and hard work are required.

At our home, the parent-child relationship is still in the honeymoon stage. It's a very warm, cuddly relationship. The words of our conversation are not as important as the tone of voice. A few goo's and gurgles mixed in with a smile and giggle or an occasional cry serves as an adequate amount of communication to keep us happy.

Sullivan suggests, however, that as our children grow older, our relationship with them inevitably changes. Just as a married couple settles into a routine after the honeymoon, parent and child go beyond that first rush of infatuation. Babies learn to say "no" and the parent's basic phrase becomes "Don't do that!" And at a high point of frustration, parents might wish to "divorce their kids" but it doesn't work that way. The job of parent is life long. Even after three decades of parenting, my parents still are my parents who counsel, worry, love and care for me.

Just as in marriage we work at keeping the romance alive by thoughtful little attentions and special times together, the relationships with our children need the same kind of effort. Just as couples look for activities and interests to share together, so parents need to be looking for such things that they can share and enjoy together with children.

I'm not able to tell you what activities to get involved in that will meet you and your child's needs. Each of us needs to establish our own family style of quality time together. However, some favorite family styles are hiking families, picture puzzle families, computer families, reading aloud families, flea-market families, bike-riding families, bread-baking families, and board game families.

Each family must work out its own favorite enterprise of family time together. The activities will vary according to the ages, stages, sexes, and number of your children. For more ideas for family time, check the many resource books at the library or local bookstore.

One final comparison between marriages and parenting. The first few years of marriage and parenting are filled with lots of hugs, kisses and laughter. Unfortunately, as we fall into a routine, these expressions of love that add life to the relationship are over-looked or forgotten. Couldn't you go for a good old-fashioned dutch-rub, back rub, bear hug, tickling session or shoulder squeezing to add some spice to your family life?

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As I pondered as to what I should write about this week, the phone rang. It was another wrong number. People who get wrong numbers seem to be divided into two different groups. One will say, "I'm sorry" and hang up. The other kind will insist that "Sadie or whoever" is there and they want to talk to her. After all, they could not have dialed a wrong number!

Personally, I don't know how we would get along without a telephone. Not only for the business of running a dairy farm but for keeping in touch with a far-flung family. It is reassuring to know that one can communicate so easily.

But there are times when the phone seems to achieve too much importance. Suppose you are in a store or office and no matter the urgency of your business, if the telephone rings, you will be left standing while the phone is answered. Recently, I heard a woman complain that after paying for her merchandise, the phone rang and she was left to wait and wait for her change while the telephone was answered.

I'll admit that somehow we did manage to live here, isolated from everyone, for several years without a telephone. Every need for a phone meant a drive in the car for over a mile to the nearest phone at a garage. This was a definite disadvantage when the barn burned and we had to hunt and hunt for a phone as people were not at home.

After paying a high price and building our own line down a long lane, we finally were put on a line with nine other families. The kinds of rings that we heard were unbelievable and at all hours of the night. One hardly appreciates a private line until one remembers how very busy that long ago phone was when we wanted to use it.

Serve Nutritious Snacks

To Americans, an occasion just isn't special without food. From office parties, to children's parties, to having a few friends drop in to play cards or to visit, snack foods play a starring role.

Many snack foods do little for nutrition or for our health. Typical snacks, such as potato chips, cookies, pretzels, candy and soft drinks offer little more than unnecessary empty calories.

Whether you are entertaining family and friends or just adding special snacks for school-age children, experiment with foods that are nutritious as well as appetizing and attractive.

If chips and dips are popular in your home, try replacing the chips or crackers with fruit or vegetable slices. Raw mushrooms, cauliflower, broccoli, radishes or turnip strips used with a favorite dip are often a tempting change for adults. For children, who usually prefer milder tasting raw vegetables, use carrot sticks, celery sticks or green pepper sticks.

Fresh, frozen or canned fruit can also be used with dips. Apple slices, pineapple chunks, banana pieces or orange sections taste refreshing when dipped into lemon yogurt.

Spreads and breads are also good snack and party foods. Use either small party loaves or regular-sized loaves of bread cut into interesting shapes. There are an endless number of spreads from which to choose, including meats, fish, seafood and cheeses. Open-faced sandwiches can be served cold or hot depending upon the spread you select. Children can help spread and cut the sandwiches, which gives them an active part in family entertaining.

Cheese and crackers are also popular for snacks or hors d'oeuvres. You can choose from a wide variety of cheeses and cheese spreads to please your guests.

For a nutritious change in liuqid drinks, select fruit juices. Chilled juice in the refrigerator is always convenient for thirsty children and teens. And don't forget water. It's still the best buy.

As you prepare snacks, remember to observe the rules of food safety. Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold! Don't allow perishable foods to set at room temperature for more than two hours. Set out small portions of dips, spreads and other perishables, and refill as needed from the refrigerator.

Never Store Fruit Juice In Open Cans

Fruit juice stored in tin cans may be hazardous to your health. The hazard is lead poisoning. It's a problem when you store juice in it's original tin can. Three South Carolina children were recently treated for lead poisoning and investigators believe the opened can of orange juice they found in the refrigerator was to blame. Tin cans are perfectly safe before they are opened. It is afterwards that the lead residue can increase to possibly dangerous levels. Transfer fruit juice and other acidic food, from tin to glass or plastic containers after opening.

What's Wrong With Grown-Ups

UNIVERSITY PARK — James Van Horn, Family Sociologist Extension Specialist at Penn State, asked a group of children "what's wrong with grown-ups?" Their answers are food for thought.

One little girl said, "Grown-ups make promises, then they forget them, or else they say it wasn't really a promise, just a maybe. My mommy is doing this all the time. She always promises me something and then forgets it."

Another girl had this to say: "Grown-ups talk so much about money and bills and things like that it scares me. They say money isn't very important, but the way they talk about it, it sounds like the most important thing in the world. But they forget my allowance too, and sometimes get upset when I ask for it.

A very insightful boy said, "Grown-ups interrupt children all the time and think nothing of it. If a child interrupts a grown-up, he gets a scolding and a lecture about manners, or worse, maybe even a whipping if there is an important person present that everyone is trying to impress."

Another child stated, "Grown-ups don't do things they are always telling children to do-- like pick up things, or be neat, or be on time for supper, or always tell the truth. My daddy never picks up his clothes and all Mom ever does is gets angry and yells at us kids and then picks up Daddy's clothes. She told him a couple of times and he said, OK, OK-- but he never picks them up. Can you tell me why?"

A little fellow had this to say: " Grown-ups talk a lot about people who are different-- like different color races. They say nasty things about them, yet they tell us kids to love everyone."

"Grown-ups never really listen to what children have to say. Sometimes they play like they are deaf or concentrating on a newspaper. They always decide ahead of time what they are going to answer. Sometimes I never get to finish what I'm saying before they answer, and then they say, 'You heard me.'"

"Grown-ups fight among themselves; neighbors won't speak to one another-- but they tell us children not to fight."

One child wrote, "Grown-ups make mistakes but they won't admit them. They always pretend that they weren't mistakes at all-- or that someone else made them."

"Grown-ups never understand how much children want a certain thing, color, shape or size. If it's something they don't like, even if the children have spent their own money for it, they always say, 'I can't imagine what you want with that thing."

"Sometimes grown-ups punish children unfairly. It isn't right if you've done just some little thing wrong and grown-ups take away something that means an awful lot to you. Other times you can do something really bad and they say they're going to punish you, but they don't. You never know, and you ought to know."

A boy said, "Grown-ups tell children not to talk to strangers, regardless of where you meet them or who they are. Then a stranger walks up and says hello to the grown-up you are with in the supermarket. He's a stranger, so you don't talk to him. When he leaves, you get a good lecture about being polite and speaking to people and not embarrassing people."

"Grown-ups pry into children's secrets. They always seem to think it's going to be something bad. They never think it might be a nice surprise."

"Grown-ups make kids wear all kinds of winter clothes-- gloves, scarf, heavy coat and boots-- yet they go outside or stand in the open door without even a sweater on when the temperature is near zero."

"Grown-ups talk about how bad it is to take drugs and they say they would never take them. Yet, our medicine chest is filled with adult medicine-- they are always taking medicine or are giving me medicine!"

A boy observed, "Grown-ups are always talking about being healthy and taking care of yourself, yet so many of them smoke cigarettes-- they will make you real sick, won't they, and maybe even make you stop breathing?"

Miller Dominates Goat Competition

HARRISBURG — Ann Miller of Little Rockspring Farm of Furlong, Bucks County, captured the Overall Best Doe of Show and grand champion title at the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Show today.

Judge Daniel Considne of Portage, Wisconsin, chose "Rockspring Light Snicker Carmel" as the overall Champion dairy goat. She was previously named the champion doe in the Toggenburg show. "I always try to breed top quality and high producing animals," Miller said following her winning.

Miller has been in the dairy goat business since the age of six. "It started out as a hobby -- which turned out to be a full-time job," she explained. Miller raises 25-30 Toggenburgs and Lamanchas on her farm. The American Dairy Goat Association (ADGA) judge has won 23 permanent champions with today's win and she has had eight animals that have best in show 45 times.

"Rockspring Ace Terrific," another animal belonging to Miller, chose to honor her by winning both the senior champion doe and the champion doe in recorded grades.

In the Lamancha division, Ann Miller struck again by snaring the grand champion doe title along with the best bred and herd group.

Nancy K. Stydinger, the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association Youth representative, not only handed out ribbons but managed to earn honors herself by winning recognition for her junior champion Lamancha kid, reserve senior champion doe and reserve grand champion doe. Her family has been in the dairy goat business for 15 years and their farm, Stydana, is located in Perry County.

Edward Sollers of Alexandria, Huntingdon County, captured reserve junior champion kid title with his entry "Country Way Angel Margaret."

Lorraine Yankovich cleaned out the Nubian division by winning best senior champion doe, reserve senior champion, grand champion doe, reserve champion doe, best dam and daughter, best get of sire, best Nubian herd group and best doe bred by exhibitor

She has been raising goats for seven years and this is the second year at the Farm Show. "I am allergic to dairy cow milk, so my husband, George, bought me a dairy goat for my birthday seven years ago I started raising goats from that day on!"

Yankovich has a total of five Nubians -- her complete herd was at the show. "I live on a mini-farm, with three acres, we try to get the most out of our farmette. I hand-raise all the babies, and am a serious breeder -- seriously trying to breed a better Nubian."

In Alpine breed division, Fred and Ann Leader were the champion Challenge Award winners, chosen as the best milking Alpine.

"This is the best we have ever done. We were very happy and a little surprised!" Fred Leader said.

"We have raised Alpines for eight years; this is our fifth year at the Farm Show. We purchase bull calves and bottle-feed them the goat milk when the does freshen," the winner said. "Then we finish out the 'very friendly' calves as steers for market."

The Leader's also raise Christmas trees on their York County farm.

Shepherd And Others Recognized By Franklin 4-H

CHAMBERSBURG — Kenneth Bixel, Chambersburg, was named Shepherd of the Year at the annual Franklin County 4-H Shepherds awards dinner, held at Trinity Lutheran Church, Chambersburg. Ken, a three year member of the Shepherds, was also in the 4-H market lamb program in Oregon before moving to Pennsylvania. Ken, along with his sister, Kim, raise a small flock of Suffolk sheep and are responsible for the care and feeding of the flock. He has shown a sincere and dedicated interest in raising sheep, is very observant regarding health considerations and has demonstrated excellent leadership qualities in 4-H. A senior at Chambersburg Area Senior High School, Ken is the son of Donald and Sharon Bixel. He is planning to become a veterinarian. Ken received the traveling trophy, a black walnut and brass plaque with the names of the three previous award winners.

Bobby Martin, Marion, son of Robert and Patsy Martin and Lee Golden Jr., Greencastle, son of Lee and Linda Golden, received the Most Improved Shepherd award. Lee has demonstrated considerable improvement in showmanship skills and has learned a lot about raising and care of sheep. He has suggested that the club start a competitive "Sheep Bowl" and has taken lessons in shearing sheep.

Bobby Martin has shown an increased interest in sheep husbandry, brought a new member into the club and spent the summer helping this newcomer learn to fit, show and care for his lambs. Bobby has also been very conscientious about the feeding of his market lambs and about parasite control.

Linda Golden, Greencastle, was recognized as the parent who has given a tremendous amount of her time to help the club, particularly in the area of securing buyers and helping at the Round-up.

Recognition was given to the following: Kelly Boyd and Christiana Keener, both of Chambersburg, perfect attendance awards; to Rachel Coady, Spring Run, award for the best Project Book.

The 4-H'ers winning the weight-gain competition with their market lambs were Kelly Boyd, Christiana Keener and Jason Mowery in first place with 72 pounds gained in their lambs, Kelly Boyd in second place with a 70 pound gain, and Rachel Coady and Lee Golden with a 68 pound gain in their lambs.

All of the above members received 1988 calendars.

The six members completing the breeding project, Kim Bixel, Ken Bixel, Rachel Coady, Lee Golden and Christiana Keener received blue ribbons and rosettes.

All of the 4-H Shepherds market lambs were carcass graded this year at Appalachian Lamb Company by the Penn State meats judging team. Place ribbons and rosettes were awarded to the top ten market lambs: Grand Champion, Christiana Keener; Reserve Champion, Gretchen Christman; third, Eric Sheiss; fourth, Gretchen Schoenberg; fifth, Delmar Lehman; sixth, Eric Long; seventh, Christiana Keener; eighth and ninth, Kenneth Bixel; tenth, Rachel Coady.

All of the 4-H Shepherds enjoyed a spaghetti dinner made with lamb before the awards presentation. The club will reorganize on January 25, 1988 at the Franklin County Extension Office.

Kenneth Bixel shows off his plaque for Shepherd of the Year. Bixel was awarded the honor by Franklin County 4-H Shepherds.

Caring For The Elderly

UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE — Tough Decisions will be the topic of discussion at the January 26 meeting of "Families Caring for Elderly Relatives." Issues of driving, making a will, appointing power of attorney, and moving typically meet resistance, yet can be critical to the safety and financial well being of the family. Some strategies to facilitate the decision making process will be discussed by Debbie Amsden, home economist at New Castle County Cooperative Extension. The meeting will be at 7:30 at the Adult Day Care Center at the University of Delaware on the corner of Lovett and Academy Street in Newark.

Teens Problems And Their Parents Views

BY DEBRA BRYANT
Extension Family Living Agent
in cooperation with
Penn State and USDA

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Search Institute, a non-profit research organization, conducted a study of eight thousand young adolescents and their parents. It reveals not only what is on the minds of teens, but also what parents perceive as concerns of their children.

How they are doing at school is the number one concern of adolescents. at this age a major portion of a teen's time is devoted to school and schoolwork. This is a young adult's job and just as an adult worries about their job, so do teens.

Three of the major concerns in the top five are those which many would predict to be concerns of teens -- "worry about looks, how well they are liked by others, and how their friends treat them." Adolescents spend many hours each day together so these interpersonal relationships are of day to day importance. It is interesting to note, though, that when these same teens were asked to rank life values they placed looking good and being popular in the lowest quarter of the list. It appears that the things causing day to day concern are not necessarily the most important to adolescents.

Rounding out the top five concerns of teens is one dealing with their families. The fourth ranked worry is that "a parent might die." On the list of values, teens also showed this concern for family by ranking "having a happy family life" as the second most important thing to them.

Other studies with adolescents aged 11-19 also supports the importance of family to teens. Adolescents are concerned about being separated from their parents either through death or some other means.

Parents were good predictors of teen concerns in most areas, but in two areas they underestimated their children's concerns.

Parents overestimated their teen's concern with him or herself and the opinion of their friends.

Parents were very much unaware of their children's worries about global and national issues, like the threat of nuclear war, poverty, violence, and drug and alcohol abuse.

An important trend was noted when the data was analyzed on the basis of age. As children mature most of their concerns change. A few, like getting a good job, remains fairly constant over all ages.

As the adolescent moves toward senior high, the concern for self (looks and popularity) and peer relationships increases. The concern for others within the larger world -- hunger, poverty, threat of nuclear war, and violence -- decreases as the child matures. Somewhere along the line the caring for others displayed by 11 and 12-year-olds gets shoved aside. As parents or people working with adolescents, we should strive to nurture these caring feelings of young teens and help them to maintain them during later adolescence.

One way to help a young teen maintain his caring instinct as he or she ages is to offer them opportunities to serve others. For example, youth could be encouraged to make visits to elderly in their family or neighborhood, help with projects for younger children, work on recycling projects, or do roadside or other clean-up work. Teens could show their concern for others and also experience the warm feeling that comes from helping others.

Adolescents of all ages have worries. It is important that parents provide their teens with opportunities to discuss their problems. Teens have real concerns and they need a responsible, caring, person to discuss them with. Sometimes just talking about a problem will go a long way toward solving it. Talking also helps clear up misunderstandings that may be increasing a teen's worries. Likewise, teens should be aware of parents concerns. A family who shares problems and works together to handle them finds they are stronger and happier for it.

Sugar Facts And Fancies

Sweet on sugar? Here are some toothsome tidbits of information from a ten-year Food and Drug Administration study of sugar's role in nutrition.

MYTH: Overweight people are likely to over-consume sugar.

FACT: On average, overweight people actually eat less sugar than do thin people. Rather than having a "sweet tooth" many overweight people have a "fat tooth," choosing rich, creamy or buttery foods over foods considered sweet or sugary. Since fats have twice as many calories as sugar, it's easy to see that sugar is not the heavy in weight control. It's not what food is eaten, but the number of calories consumed and the number expended through exercise that influences weight loss.

MYTH: Eating sugar causes diabetes.

FACT: Sugar consumption does not cause diabetes. Diabetes is a disorder of the body's metabolism that prevents efficient use of carbohydrates. A family history of diabetes is a major factor in development of this disease; eating sugar in no way influences its offset.

Mifflin County Dairy Farm

Operating dairy farm for sale in Lewistown, R.D. 1, area. Owners health is main reason for decision to sell property. The farm is located on a paved road in Ferguson Valley, 4 miles from Lewistown, 30 miles from Penn State. There are 142 acres on the farm with 100-plus of them tillable and 28 pasture. The balance are in woodlands and building sites. There is a stream running on each side of the farm. The main barn and house are on the paved road with easy access to the milk house.

Buildings include a two story dairy barn with 34 stalls and two box stalls downstairs. The box stalls, and adjoining feed room could be easily expanded to include eight to ten more cow stalls. The dairy barn has a pipeline milker, gutter cleaner, a 12' by 36' milk house, and a 600 gallon bulk tank. Two stave silos are 12' by 45' and a 18' by 50'. There are several outbuildings that serve as machinery storage.

An excellent spring and two wells provide water for the farm and residence.

The farm house is a two story, 10 room, newly remodeled with 4 bedrooms, 2 bathrooms, aluminum siding, storm windows, and insulation. The heating system is oil fired hot water. Wall to wall carpet throughout. Two bow windows, sliding glass door and stone fireplace with stove insert.

A trailer pad with septic and well is also part of farm.

The present owner rents land that would be available to a new owner.

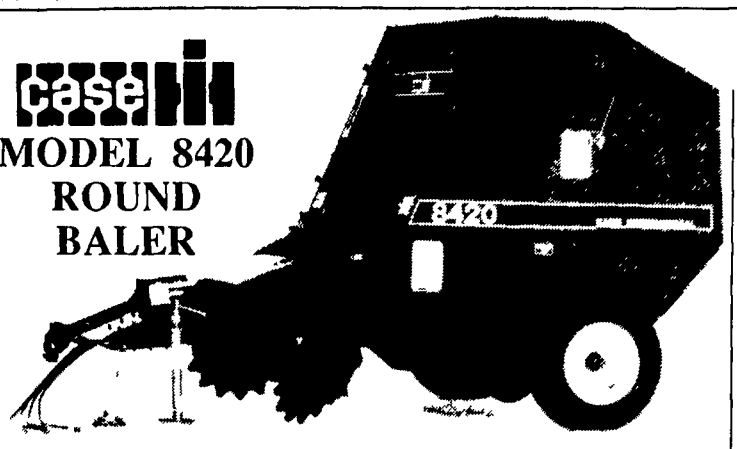
TWO NEW ADDITIONS TO THE CASE IH FORAGE LINE

MODEL 8420 ROUND BALER



Even though your operation may not call for a large bale that doesn't mean you don't want the best there is in a baler. The Case International 8420 doesn't give you anything less. By producing bales that are 39 inches wide by 54 inches in diameter this machine turns out a tight package that is especially easy to handle and transport. The direct feed open throat chamber plus an aggressive starter roll gets each bale started right. The direct feed concept also lets you bale straw, cornstalks and other crop residue just as easily as hay crops.

When the bale chamber is full a bale full alert lets you know it's time to wrap the bale with either the manual rope activated mechanism or the optional hydraulic twine tie system. A bale size indicator also lets you know how the bale is progressing – so you can tie off early for smaller bales. A bale counter even lets you know how many bales you've tied up.

A 38¼ inch wide cam actuated pickup sweeps the ground clean with tines spaced only 2.6 inches apart while five belts surround the bale.

Best of all, the 8420 doesn't require a lot of power to put up a crop. All you need is a 30 PTO hp tractor with single remote hydraulics and you're on your way to productive baling.

Why Not Come In And Deal On This New Case IH 12 Ft. Mower Conditioner

MODEL 8350

The Case International 8350 mower conditioner offers large machine capacity combined with maximum flexibility all at the price of smaller sized machines. Its 12 foot cut lets you dramatically increase productivity while still producing smooth fast drying nine foot swaths. If you'd rather windrow simply adjust the swath shield and the 8350 turns out fluffy even windrows that eliminate raking.

A pair of 110 inch engaged conditioner rolls provide aggressive conditioning when it is needed, yet gentleness when you are trying to save valuable leaves. Two rugged augers deliver the crop across the full width of the conditioner to ensure evenly distributed swaths.

The 8350 even includes an easy access receptacle built into the frame so you can keep an extra sickle with you at all times. Plus you get a tool box for spare parts and adjustment tools.

EXCELLENT MANEUVERABILITY

Very few mower conditioners offer the adjustment range and maneuverability of the 8350. The mechanical tongue uses a swing cylinder to change from field to road position right from the tractor seat. Plus the transport width is no wider than most 12 foot center pivot windrowers.

For outstanding vertical and radial flotation, each wheel assembly on the 8350 is equipped with four counter balanced flotation springs. All springs are easily accessible for quick and easy adjustment (two bolts on each side). And when the field is all done, hydraulic wheel cylinders lift the header to a road height of 20 inches so there is never any worry about disturbing those fluffy windrows.

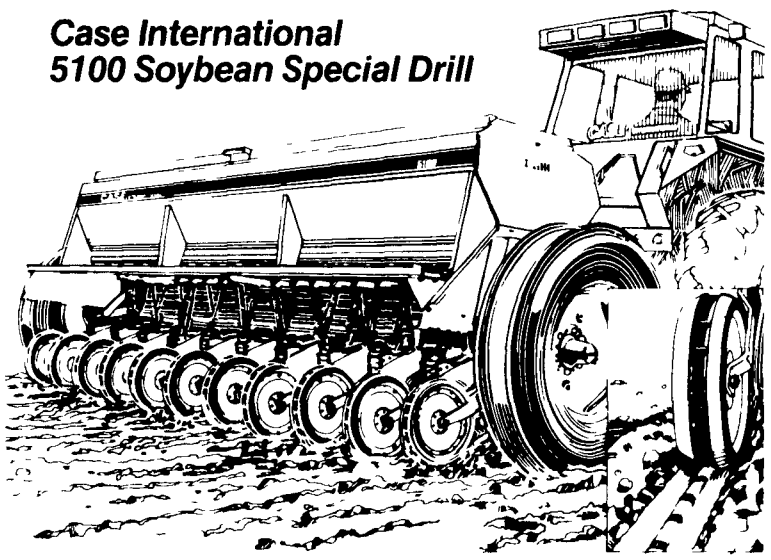
Case International 5100 Soybean Special Drill



Drill soybeans with a 5100 Soybean Special and you can expect yields up to 25% higher than with conventional row-planting methods. Here's what you get with the 5100:

- Outstanding seeding accuracy. Famous Case International feed cups deliver seed smoothly and positively at a uniform rate.
- Solid seeding. Accurate depth control in row spacings as close as 6".. while some other drills provide depth control only in 10 or 12" spacings.
- Fast emergence. Case International dual-rib press wheels compact the soil around the seed, and gently "firm" the top to prevent air pockets. Result: Quick germination and emergence ... a fast start toward high yields.

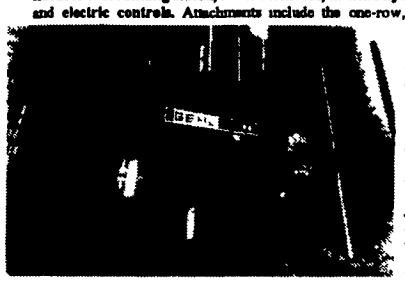
1060/1260 Forage Harvester

Gehl's revolutionary Auto-Max system is standard on the 1260, optional on the 1060 It lets you operate your harvester at top capacity, without fear of downtime due to overloading, so you get more harvesting done in less time With both the 1060 and 1260, you save more time with features like the exclusive, patented one-side cutterbar adjustment and in-head hydraulic knife sharpener. Both machines feature a unique spinner delivery system instead of cross augers Options include a Metal-Stop metal detector and haylage water tank. The 1260 is designed for big tractors up to 300 hp The 1060 is designed for tractors up to 200 hp

760 Forage Harvester

Solid. Reliable Efficient. Designed for use with tractors from 60 to 150 hp, the 760 uses less horsepower per chopped ton than "larger" model harvesters The 760 has a hefty 8-knife cylinder, a close-coupled cylinder and blower, and an options list that includes overrunning clutch, bevel extenders, in-head hydraulic knife and cutterbar sharpening system, tandem axles, haylage water tank and electric controls. Attachments include the one-row, and wide or narrow two-row plus a 6 ft. hay pickup



1540/1560/1580 Forage Blower

Now with greater capacity than ever! The secret is the twin spinner delivery system and the twin-sided fan. Two 24-inch feed spinners rifle your crop into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph There the twin-sided fan, with paddles on each side, blows it up the pipe with ease Our unique rim sheet, made of higher carbon steel than ordinary rim sheet, lasts longer — and you only need to replace the section in the extreme wear area, right below the outlet— not the entire rim sheet Other features include an adjustable left axle and swing-away outlet. The 1540 is a 540 rpm direct drive blower The 1580 can be used with either 540 or 1000 rpm tractors The 1560 is a 1000 rpm direct drive blower

Several Models In Stock at Discount Preseason Prices

970 Self-Unloading Forage Box

More speed, greater capacity are the big advantages built into every Gehl 970 forage box The secret is the Even Feed third beater, plus a wide, 23-½ in. cross conveyor. The third beater is set farther back and has longer tines to break up material and prevent lumps from falling onto the conveyor The result is less front end spillover, more uniform feeding of the crop into the cross conveyor, up to 20% faster unloading The lifetime steel used in the sides, endgate and stakes is superior to other steels Available in five capacity sizes from 397 cu ft on the 14-foot model up to 750 cu ft on the 18-foot model

125/170 Gehl Mix-All® Grinder-Mixer

Here's the one spreader for the two-spreader farm. A Gehl 300 Series Scavenger II spreader lets you spread liquids, semi-solids, open-packed, even frozen manure The patented heavy-duty square-tube auger makes the big difference. Turning at low rpm, it produces a unique "pulse action" that breaks up manure in the tank Specially formed paddles rip through tough clods to deliver a steady, constant flow to the discharge The auger can be hydraulically powered up and down to chop through bridged and frozen material Variflo discharge gives you complete application control Five models with capacities from 192 to 596 bushels Backed by a 10-year rust-through warranty.

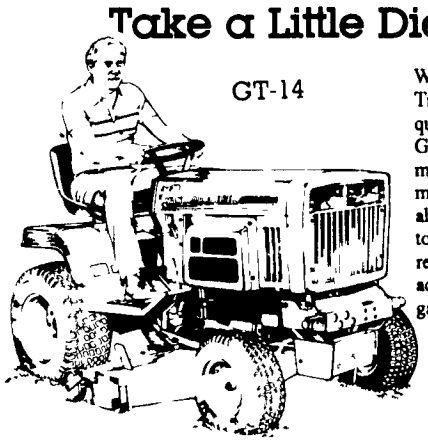
YANMAR

Take a Little Diesel Break



GT-14

With Yanmar's GT-14 Lawn & Garden Tractor you can take a break from frequent fuel stops because our little diesel GT-14 tractor virtually sips fuel. That means you can finish faster and enjoy more free time on the weekends. Best of all, our GT-14 has no electrical system to cause problems, no spark plugs to replace, and no carburetor to clean or adjust...a major cause of problems in gasoline powered tractors

Test drive a smooth, quiet running Yanmar GT-14 Lawn & Garden Tractor.

Take a break and see us today!

A crowd of hundreds, each with their own favorite, cheered as 12 teams of shawlmakers competed for the grand champion title during Farm Show. It took most of the teams 2½ hours to finish their creations; but the winning team, with five people working in perfect coordination, finished in just 75 minutes.

Quite an accomplishment considering the work involved. First, after receiving instructions (A), teams had to shear a sheep, card the wool (G), spin the wool into threads (C), and weave it into a garment (B) measuring 78"x22".

The Wool Bags (F) received many awards, and their shawl went to Rich Brandt Farm Real Estate for $1,250.

One of the show's attractions was a Jacob's sheep (D), an unusual spotted breed that originates in Africa.

Prize-Winning Shawl Brings Top Dollar

HARRISBURG, PA. — Rich Brandt Farm Real Estate paid a record price for the Grand Champion Shawl from the Sixth Annual Sheep to Shawl Contest Wednesday night at the Farm Show. Brandt paid $1,250 for the Champion shawl, breaking his own previous record 1987 bid by $25. He was also top bidder for the Reserve Grand Champion Shawl ($975).

The Grand Champion Shawl came from "The Wool Bags" only 75-minutes after the shearing started. When the record bid is divided by the time it took to make the shawl, it shows the team made $16.67 per minute. The 77-inch by 22-inch "old shaker design" shawl featured a "Spot Bronson" weave which required the weaver to treadle 60 different sequences.

Team members of the "Wool Bags" all make their livings from various sheep and textile businesses. Members include: Weaver - Ellen Meneely of Punxsutawney, JEFFERSON COUNTY; Spinners - Harriet Knox and Linda Watson of Covode, INDIANA COUNTY, and Pam Bryan of Shelocta, INDIANA COUNTY; and shearer Sandy Behm of Marchand, INDIANA COUNTY. Behm also won "Best Shearer Award" which is sponsored by L&M Fur Enterprises of Quakertown, BUCKS COUNTY.

In addition to the shawl price, the "Wool Bags" took home $150 in premiums, a traveling trophy, sponsored by Harrisville Design, a grand champion plaque and rosettes. The Border Leicester sheep used in the contest was supplied by Mary Hubler of Hummelstown DAUPHIN COUNTY.

Winning the reserve champion title, two years in a row, the "Bobbin Bunch", representing LEHIGH-NORTHAMPTON and LANCASTER COUNTIES, placed second. Their peach, persimmon shawl with accents of sage green caught Brandt's eye at auction, bringing the team $975. This was $75 more than the 1987 National Record price paid to the "Bobbin Bunch" by Ray Hillard, Jr. of Mifflintown, JUNIATA COUNTY. Hillard was also contending bidder on the 1988 champion and reserve champion shawls.

According to Auctioneer, Harry Bachman of Annville, LEBANON COUNTY, Rich Brandt Farm Real Estate has purchased the top eight shawls in nine state contests. The first two contests held at the Farm Show were called the "Northeast Regional Sheep to Shaw Contest". With Pennsylvania craftsmen dominating the show, 1983 began the "all Pennsylvania" competition.

The "Bobbin Bunch" received $125 in premiums, along with a Reserve Champion plaque. The members included Spinners Diane Huddleston of Macungie, LEHIGH COUNTY; Alice Gillespie of Danielsville, NORTHAMPTON COUNTY; Jean Sattler of Easton, NORTHAMPTON COUNTY; weaver Betsy Johnston of Bethlehem, NORTHAMPTON COUNTY, and shearer Jim Shearer of Mountville, LANCASTER COUNTY. The Romney sheep used by the team was supplied by Vesper Valley Farms.

The "Butler County Pedalers" representing BUTLER COUNTY placed third with a "Diamonds and Lace" weave using white on white. Besides taking home $100 in premiums, the shawl was bought by Ray E. Hillard of Gossett Livestock Pre-Mixs of Mifflintown, JUNIATA COUNTY, for $150.

Team members included Spinners Ruth Schnell of Chicora; Marilyn Merbach of Saxonburg and Alvina Polka of Vandergrift, ARMSTRONG COUNTY. Sheep shearer was Carol Ann Shuler of Fenelton, while team weaver was Blanch Hall of Bruin.

During the Sheep to Shawl Contest, 12 teams from across the state sheared a sheep, spun the wool into yarn and wove an original design 100 percent wool shawl in two and one-half hours. Scoring was based on the following system: team identification - five points; speed - five points; spinning ability - 35 points; weaving ability - 20 points; and design of shawl - 30 points.

The "Fiber Friends", the 1987 Grand Champion winners placed fourth with an original "Log Cabin Design" shawl, designed exclusively for the contest by team weaver Barbara Blander of Ringtown, SCHUYLKILL COUNTY. Blander also received a 14 kt. gold shuttle pin by special sponsor Ginger Smith of California, for her expert weaving ability. The shawl, using a unique black and white four-horned Jacob sheep supplied Hubler, was purchased by Mrs. Peggy Wolff, wife of State Secretary of Agriculture, Boyd E. Wolff, for $325.

The "Fiber Friends" also won the prestigious "Team's Choice" Award. Each team member -- 60 total in this year's contest -- had the opportunity to vote for their favorite shawl. The "Fiber Friends" received a plaque for this honor.

Team members included Blander, SCHUYLKILL COUNTIANS Kathleen Liddle of Pottsville, Barb Fessler of Tower City, and shearer Allen Cornman of Pine Grove. Kathryn Otto of Johnstown, LEBANON COUNTY, rounded out the team.

The northwest was well represented with the "Northwest Treadlers", placing fifth with their "lace weave" white on white shawl. Team members included Barbara Lodge of Meadville, CRAWFORD COUNTY, Ruth Walker-Daniels of Oil City, VENANGO COUNTY; Carolyn Dougan of Meadville; Helen McCartney of Waterford, ERIE COUNTY, and Aaron Klassen of Emlenton, VENANGO COUNTY.

Purchasing the shawl was Todd Bennecoff of Kutztown, BERKS COUNTY, for $300. The Romney ram used in the shawl was supplied by McCartney's Valley View Farm.

The "Pick-A-Way Spinners" -- 1985 Champion Team placed sixth, with an "undulating twill" weave in graduated shades of blue and natural Corriedale FLEECE. Catching a veteran bidders eye -- Rich Brandt Farm Real Estate purchased the shawl for $200 from the BERKS COUNTY team.

Team members included Pat Campbell of Oley; Marna McKay of Boyertown; Shirley Waid of Oley; Sue Hollowbush of Fleetwood and Randy Stitzel of Fleetwood.

Central Pennsylvania craftsmen were in the spotlight as the Barefoot Treadlers placed seventh -- and also walked away with two special awards.

Team spinners Mary Hubler, Kim Koenig of Pine Grove, SCHUYLKILL COUNTY, and Carolyn Peyser of Middletown, DAUPHIN COUNTY, won the special "Spinners Award". Each received a $25 gift certificate from Mannings Handweaver's Studio of East Berlin; Campbell's of Herndon; and the Weaver's Studio of Ligonier In addition, an award was given for the best "fleeced" sheep. A sheep halter, sponsored by Cruetzburg, Inc. of Paradise, was presented to Hubler of Hubler Eggs, Hummelstown, DAUPHIN COUNTY, for her black registered Border Leicester ewe -- "Thumbelina" which the team used in the contest.

Team shearer was Christian Herr of Narvon, LANCASTER COUNTY, while Barb Hehnly of Meyerstown, LEBANON COUNTY, wove. Ray E. Hillard, Jr. purchased the shawl at $175.

Linda and Arthur Arnold of Lebanon, LEBANON COUNTY, were the successful bidders of the eighth place shawl made by the "Five Fleece Fanciers". Their peach, persimmon and cream shawl was accented by black Border Leicester, supplied by Hubler. Team members included Jan Ott from Orbisonia, HUNTINGDON COUNTY, and BEDFORD COUNTIANS Elissa Henderson and Tracy Henderson of Shellsburg; Peggy McCammon and Cindy Meyers, both of Bedford. Tracy was the youngest official team member at 10 years of age.

West Chester Animal Hospital of West Chester, CHESTER COUNTY, took home the ninth place shawl featuring a classical

Junior Breeders Exhibit Their Finest Ewes

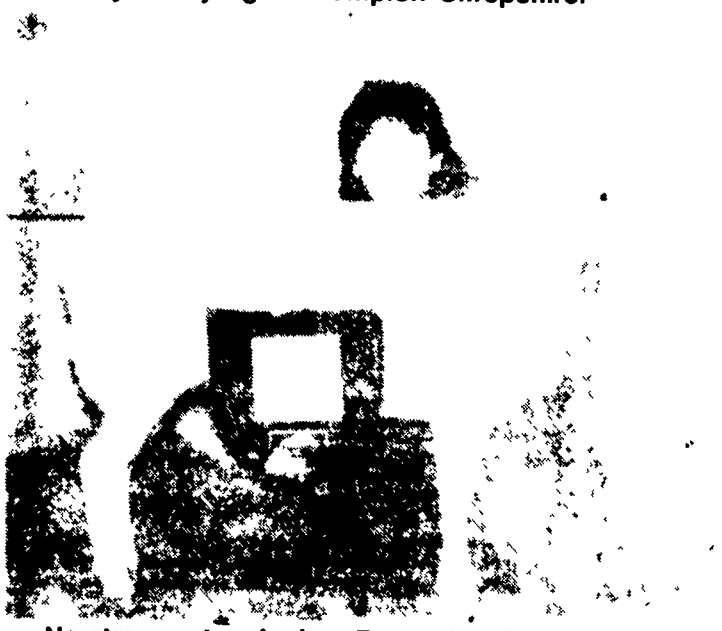
By Lisa Risser

HARRISBURG — With ages ranging from 5 to 20, Pennsylvania's youngest sheep breeders gathered at the Farm Show on Wednesday to show their best ewes. Judge Duran Howard from Mulhall, Ok., chose champions and reserve for seven breeds. These select few will influence bloodlines for years to come.

The champion and reserve champion Dorset ewes were shown by Alicia Strausbaugh, center. Helping her was Rachael Hixenbaugh and her brother, Jeff Strausbaugh.

Robert B. McCrumb III showed the champion ewe in the Merino class. His sister, Becky, showed the lamb for him.

The stylish, eye-appealing ewe exhibited by Arlisa Snavely was judged champion Shropshire.



No stranger to winning, Donna MacCauley showed the junior champion and reserve Cheviot ewes.

Cheviot

The homebred ewes shown by 17-year-old Donna MacCauley of Atglen (Chester) captured the champion and reserve champion titles. MacCauley has had many champions with her Cheviot's as well as the Suffolk that she also raises. In last year's junior competition, she showed the reserve champion and two years ago had both reserve and champion. MacCauley also competes in the open show. This year she showed both champion and reserve champion Cheviot ewe.

Dorset

Only a judge can tell a champion and even then it's often a matter of opinion. Alicia Strausbaugh of York showed two home-bred Dorset ewe lambs of which the Junior champion was named reserve in the Open show while the Junior reserve champion was the Open show champion. The Keystone Internal Livestock Exposition judge agreed with the Junior show judge. Alicia, 15, has been showing for six years, during which time she's had three junior champions.

Hampshire

Ellen Lewis of Mt. Joy (Lancaster) swept the top spots in the Hampshire classes to have the champion and reserve champion ewes. This is the second year running that she's had both champion and reserve. The granddam of her champion, Zwanzig, was Lewis' first Farm Show junior champion. Lewis has been a 4-H'er for eight years. "It's given me a lot of help with sportsmanship, trimming, fitting, and feeding," she said. Lewis and her parents, George and Lorraine, have 35 registered Hampshires.

Merino

Robert B. McCrumb III of Mars (Butler) is doing well in this, his first year to show Merinos at Farm Show. Monday night he had champion and reserve in the open show, and on Wednesday he showed the junior champion breeding ewe. The junior champion was named reserve champion in the open show. McCrumb also raises Dorsets, Southdowns and Shropshire.

Reserve champion ewe was a lamb exhibited by Barbara Falvey of Bedford (Bedford). Falvey also competed in the open show having the champion ewe.

Shropshire

Lily, the stylish and eye-appealing yearling ewe that Arlisa Snavely of Lancaster showed the champion ewe. Fourteen-year-old Snavely picked the champion out of a group of triplets. "She was unusual because she was larger than the other two, said Snavely. Lily competed in the open show and received reserve champion honors. Her dam is from the Newcomer line while the sire is a Hartzell. Snavely, a 4-H'er, is the daughter of Jim and Arlene Snavely.

The second-place yearling ewe owned by Gwendolyn Perry of Hamburg (Berks) was judged reserve champion. Perry also competed in the open show, receiving third place in the flock class.

Southdown

Dan Wehr, president of Lehigh County FFA, showed the chapter's home-bred yearling ewe that captured the championship spot. Exhibitors for the past 8 years this is the chapter's first farm show champion. The FFA chapter has a flock of 40 Southdowns. "The kids do the breeding and selecting," said advi-

Representing Lehigh County FFA, Don Wehr showed the champion Southdown ewe. With him is Boyd Wolff, secretary of agriculture, center, and Judge Duran Howard.

For the second year in a row, Ellen Lewis showed the champion and reserve Hampshire ewes.

Nineteen-year-old Rachael Hixenbaugh showed the champion Suffolk ewe.

Junior Breeders

sor Fred Stillwagen. "They're in charge of the program." Lancaster Countian Mark Tracy exhibited the reserve champion ewe. Tracy, who lives in Elizabethtown, competed in the open show.

Suffolk

Rachael Hixenbaugh of Beaver (Beaver) showed the champion ewe, making it her fourth in a row. Her home-bred ewe competed in the open show, placing first in its class. Hixenbaugh, who has been showing here for eight years, has 20 Suffolk. "I believe in quality, not quantity," she stated. "I haven't had many, but they've been good ones. I've always stressed that."

Claiming blue ribbons were Abraham W. Allebach and Penwoods Percherons, Centre County; Robert W. Decker, Somerset County, and Larry B. Orndorff, Adams County.

Allebach, of Spring Mills, captured blue ribbons with his entries in the one hitched horse open and youth-to-drive classes. Penwoods won in the ladies-to-drive division.

Orndorff, from McKnightstown, exhibited the team that proved tops in maneuvering the obstacle course, while J. & D. Corl of State College, Centre County, took home the award for the best four-horse hitch.

Another familiar family name associated with Pennsylvania draft horses, the Alfred Rovenolts of Turbotville, Northumberland County, were second in team hitch. Brothers Sweep Junior Market Lamb Championship Honors

BY LISA RISSER

HARRISBURG — The Kuzemchak family had plenty to celebrate Wednesday night with not one, but two winners. Seventeen-year-old Scott showed the grand champion market lamb, while his younger brother, Joe, exhibited the reserve grand champion.

Scott was presented with a purple and gold banner, which is one of the most coveted sheep awards to be presented at Farm Show. The junior market lamb show took place in the Farm Show complex Wednesday afternoon.

The sons of Richard and Gayle Kuzemchak of Pleasant Gap (Centre), Scott showed a heavyweight wether and Joe had a light heavyweight. The two spent quite a bit of time looking for their animals with their father, who is a shepherd at Penn State. "We look for appearance, muscling, and type," explained Scott. "The type I like are Suffolks."

Scott's grand champion was a Suffolk as was Joe's. Scott has been exhibiting market lambs at Farm Show for about seven years. He got his first taste of championship in his first year of showing when he had a reserve grand champion. Scott, a student of Bellefonte High School and a 4-H'er, also has had champions and reserve champions at county fairs.

Wednesday was special to Joe, not only for his win, but because he turned 12 that day. Joe has been showing at Farm Show for three

Hyde To Speak To New York Cattlewomen

SYRACUSE, NY — Gerda Hyde of Oregon, president of the American National Cattlewomen will be the featured speaker at the annual meeting of the New York Cattlewomen Jan. 30 at the Sheraton Inn, Syracuse.

Mrs. Hyde will speak at the Cattlewomen's business meeting which begins at 9 a.m. Jan. 30. She will also be a speaker at the banquet Jan. 29 for the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association and the New York Cattlewomen.

Mrs. Hyde was educated in agricultural economics at the University of California. She and her author/naturalist husband Dayton O. "Hawk" Hyde operate the Yamsi Ranch in southern Oregon. The couple has five children, all whom have taken an active interest in ranch affairs. In addition to the cattle raised on the ranch there is an active timberlands project with trees planted and then harvested on cut-over areas of the ranch. In addition an exclusive "fly fishing resort" is another part of the ranch activities.

Mrs. Hyde has been an active CowBelle/Cattlewoman since the Klamath (Oregon) Cowbelles were organized in 1955. She served as president of the Oregon CowBelles in 1981. On the national level she has served on a number of committees before election to the executive committee, then to vice president, president-elect and currently president of the 10,000 member national organization.

She calls on Cattlewomen both on their state and on the national level "to serve as strong spokespersons who use a positive approach to tell the story of our industry and our products."

New York Cattlewomen will elect a slate of officers, name a "Cattlewoman of the Year" and set priorities for the coming year.

Along with the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association they will be attending the two-day Trade Show, special seminars, the Friday night banquet and the annual Awards Luncheon Saturday Jan. 30.

Pennsylvania's Finest Compete F

BY PAT PURCELL

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's finest beef cattle paraded around the large arena for the 72nd Pennsylvania Farm Show beef shows on Wednesday. The best in the state in several cases may have been the best in the nation, according to show judges Nelson Curry of Kentucky and and Albert Epperly of North Carolina.

Breeders of Polled Hereford, Angus, Charolais, Simmental and Limosin were making repeat performances and some were acquiring the state farm show awards for their first time. Numbers may have been down this year, but the best examples of the individual breeds were present to make competition and judging a bit difficult at times.

Simmental Champions

Rose Schneider has been working very hard for the past eight years at the Rolling Ridge Farm in Butler, Butler County. At least that's the word from Rolling Ridge Farms herd manager Tom Whalen.

Rose and her husband Harold Schneider have been exhibiting Simmentals at the Pennsylvania Farm Show for eight years and they have collected more grand and reserve championships than they can quickly recount. When they are not showing off their homebred Simmentals at the Pennsylvania show they are at home working.

Throughout the year the Schneider's do not exhibit their animals anywhere else. Their hard work and Rose's breeding selection is working. Rolling Ridge is in its fourth generation of Simmentals. In 1988 the Schneiders collected their third premier Breeder and premier exhibitor award and added another plaque for grand champion heifer of the Simmental show to their wall.

Hurley Meeks captured the grand champion bull title with the grand champion of the Venango County fair. Owner bred this outstanding Simmental breed bull is from Meeks M & M farm in Venus.

Limousin Champions

It's been a long time coming. Ed Nicol began raising Limousin beef cattle on his farm in Enon Valley, Lawrence County, four years ago. Three years ago he showed his first Limousin at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show. In 1988 he pulled the finest examples of what he calls the best of the beef cattle breeds from his 65-head herd and swept the grand championship honors.

Nicol's Lori Moon Dancer took the grand champion heifer title and Maples Lanes Rechereche took the grand champion bull title. It's been a long time coming for Nicol and his wife Rita, but the wait has paid off.

The Limousin bull was acquired from breeder, Lee Rosen from Quaker Hill Farms in Trevilians, Virginia. Nicol prefers the Limousin because they are easy calvers and with he and his wife away much of the time that's important to both of them. Pam Peffer of Butler County captured the coveted Limousin awards. Peefer took both the premier breeder and the premier exhibitor awards. Peffer's outstanding young stock took several first places.

The reserve grand champion heifer was led into the winner's circle by Jennifer Sue Rose of Cochranton in Crawford County. The reserve grand champion bull belonged to A. H. Mosher of Perkasie in Bucks County. This was Mosher's third reserve grand champion at the farm show.

Champion Angus

T and J Farms of York County was named the premier exhibitor of the Farm Show Angus cattle show. Their intermediate champion early summer yearling, T & J RIfle 609 was named the reserve grand champion bull. The grand champion Angus bull was from the junior calf division. The calf was exhibited by William J. Warren of Furlong, Bucks County.

In the Angus heifer show, the April junior yearling, Penn State Princess, owned by Seldom Seen Farm of Freedom, Beaver County, was named the show's grand champion. The reserve grand champion Angus heifer, Northwood Katinia Gal, represented the second purple of the day for the York County's T & J Farms.

Charolais Champions

In the Charolais judging, Jesse H. Hass of Conneautville, Crawford County showed the grand champion heifer, Riverwood Flo, who was also the senior female champion heifer. John O. Myers of Dallastown, York County won the honors with Dunkard Valley Explosion, judged grand champion Charolais bull and junior bull champion.

RCC Royal Shannon honored her owner, Raymond A. Bratton of McVeytown, Mifflin County, by winning both the reserve senior female champion and the reserve grand champion Charolais heifer. Jesse H. Haas was the proud owner of the reserve champion bull, Hill Top Cujo. The reserve junior bull champion belongs to an Adams County breeder, William Henry Huffman of New Oxford.

Grand champion Limousin bull, Maple Lanes Recherche, is owned by Rita and Ed Nicol of Enon Valley. At the halter is Mike Clark.

Polled Herefords

In the beef cattle judging in the large arena, Y-Not Farm of Indiana County was named premier exhibitor and Spring Bottom Farm of Adams County won premier breeder during the Polled Herford judging. Y-Not Farm of Dayton, Indiana County had the grand champion heifer for the second year in a row.

Spring Bottom Farm of Fairfield, Adams County brought the grand champion bull with SBF Royal Gypsy King. The reserve grand champion title went to Stars and Stripes owned by Y-Not Farms and W & W and C & S Farms.

Lamb And Wool Queen Vows To Change Consumers' Eating And Clothing Tastes

BY LOU ANN GOOD

WAYNESBURG — Jennifer Mawhinney isn't pulling the wool over your eyes when she says she plans to increase the profitability of the state's sheep producers. As the Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen, she is out to change consumers' eating and clothing tastes to include more wool attire and more lamb chops in their menus.

Long a stauch supporter of the lamb industry, the seventeen year-old Mawhinney lives on a 40-acre century farm in Greene county where her parents, Michael and Janet Mawhinney raise a flock of 60 commercial ewes and 20 registered Dorsets. As a participant in the 4-H sheep program for 8 years, Mawhinney attended the National 4-H Congress in that field. Twice she represented the state in the national "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest.

Mawhinney says, "Wool is very versatile. It's the only fabric that drapes and shapes by itself." She explained that wool fibers have memories that works like springs—when wool wrinkles, hang it up and the next day it will look like it has just been pressed.

The new cool wools that have been released on the market receive nothing but highest praise from Mawhinney who said they ae warm in cool weather and cool in warm weather. At the Pennsylvania State Farm Show, Mawhinney displayed swatches of wool fabrics that show the amazing changes in wool that advanced technology has made in the industry. Many of of the thin fabrics show no relationship to the heavy material that people usually associate with wool. Blue jeans and T-shirts made from wool were at Mawhinney's display.

Her activities are not limited to the sheep industry. She is a senior at Carmichael Area High School where she majors in the academic course and serves as the secretary of the senior class. She is president of the Nuclear Physics Club, a member of the National Honor Society, girl's basketball team and the senior stand committee. Mawhinney was crowned the lamb queen on October 3 at the International Livestock Exposition at the Farm Show complex in Harrisburg. First runner-up in the contest was Debra J. Martin who raises a flock of registered Suffolks. The twenty-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin H. Martin of Conestoga, Martin was sponsored by the Cumberland Cooperative Sheep and Wool Growers Association.

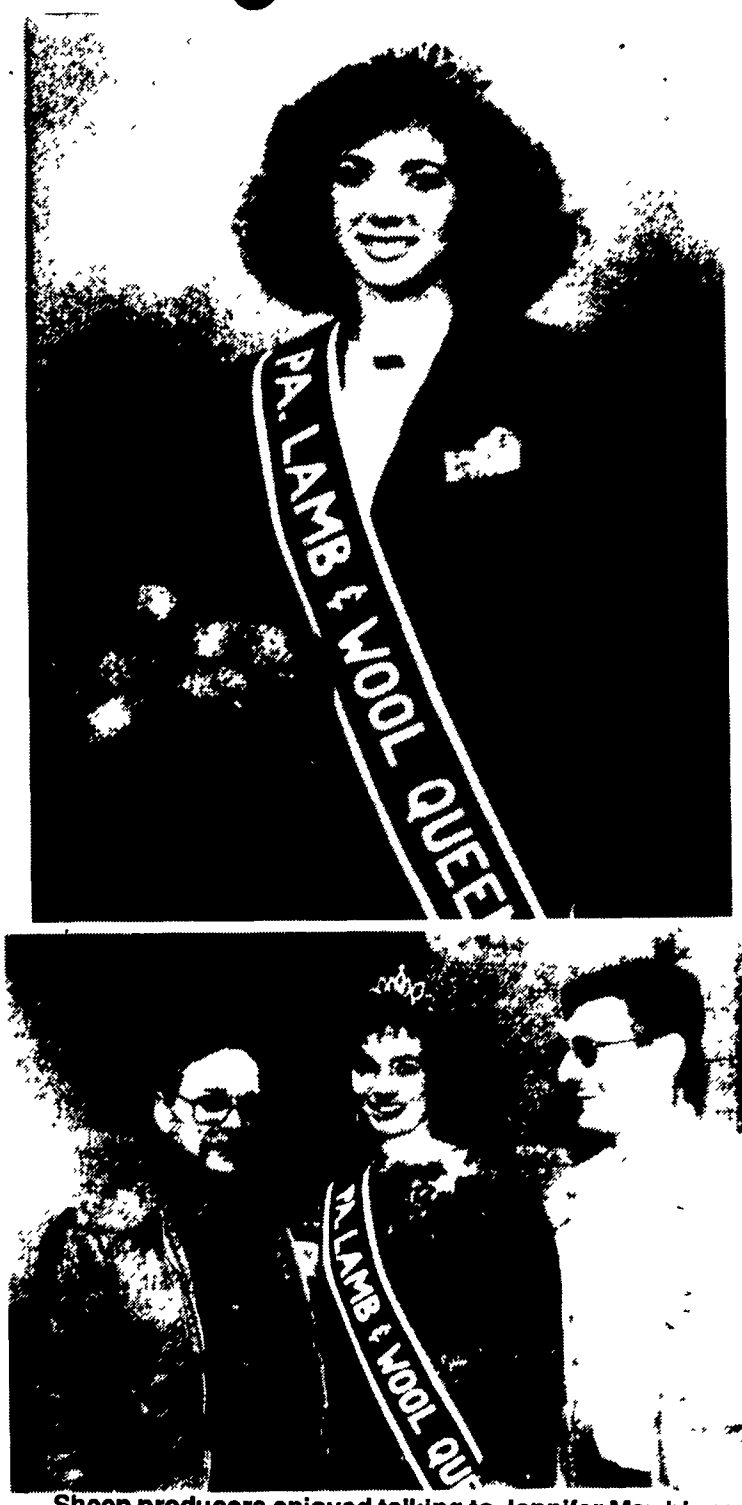
Goals during Mawhinney's reign include increasing the profitability of PA sheep producers and encouraging and supporting new producers. Part of her strategy includes encouraging lamb growers to promote lamb and wool by handing out literature from the American Sheep Producers Council and lamb samples during promotions.

Both queen and runner-up will represent the industry at county and state promotions.

State Farm Show spectators learned a lot about wool fabrics if they stopped by the Lamb and Wool Queen's display. Queen Jennifer Mawhinney is an avid seamstress who has sewn the outfit she is wearing from 100% wool fabric.



Sheep producers enjoyed talking to Jennifer Mawhinney about the wonders of their product. The Queen is flanked by Jerry Teter, left, of Bruceton Mills, W. Va. and Ned Poe of Morgantown, W. Va.

Shed Pounds With Lean Pork Diet

It seems that people will try just about anything to lose weight. From pills, to fasting, to expensive weight-loss spas, to outrageous dieting devices, the variety of dieting techniques is endless.

An estimated 65 million Americans are on a diet, and each year they spend $20 billion on books, foods, pills, support groups and devices that will help them lose unwanted pounds.

Unfortunately, many people neglect proper nutrition when they try to lose weight. One nutritious diet aid is as close as the nearest market's meat case — pork! Fresh pork — which is 50 percent leaner than twenty years ago — is the star attraction of the new Pork Nouvelle diet plan.

The Pork Nouvelle seven-day diet plan includes a wide variety of fresh pork dishes that are low in fat and cholesterol and packed with essential vitamins and minerals. There is no need to worry about neglecting your nutrition with the Pork Nouvelle plan because the diet's nutritional benefits will help your body feel good as it gets thinner — a three-ounce serving of fresh pork is rich in protein, riboflavin, vitamins B-6 and B-12, iron, zinc and thiamine.

The Pork Nouvelle diet plan contains an average of 1,200 calories per day for females and 1,800 calories per day for males. Both meal plans have 30 percent or less fat, which is within the American Heart Association's recommended levels for total daily fat intake.

Not only are the Pork Nouvelle dishes healthy for you, but they also taste great. Some of the enticing entrees include: Pork Stir Fry, Marinated Pork Salad, Pork Medallions with Dijon Dill Sauce and Pork Kabobs. Photographs and easy-to-prepare recipes are also presented.

The diverse menus will help dieters avoid the boredom that often accompanies many weight-loss plans; and the wide selection of pork products and cuts will add zest and taste to your diet. Whether you follow the plan verbatim, or just use a few of the dishes, you'll be on your way to successful weight control.

To obtain a free copy of "Pork Nouvelle," send a self-addressed stamped envelope to the National Pork Producers Council, Department DB, P.O. Box 10383, Des Moines, Iowa, 50306.

Protein and Performance

You've probably heard the claim that feeding high protein levels to growing hogs improves performance and increases carcass quality. If you're like most producers, you'll question whether the claim is fact or fiction. And more importantly, if there is added performance, will it pay for the extra protein?

You may also know that barrows grow faster than gilts, but gilts are leaner and have more muscle. Does that mean we should feed more protein to gilts to speed up their growth and to take advantage of their ability to lay down more muscle?

THE RIGHT PROTEIN LEVEL

More than 10 years ago, a Subcommittee on Swine Nutrition for the National Research Council examined dozens of reports regarding protein level and hog performance. And in 1979, they published their recommendations: From 50 pounds to 125 pounds, feed hogs a ration equivalent to a 16% corn-soy mixture. From 125 pounds to market weight, feed a 13% diet.

But lately researchers have been taking a second look at this issue of protein level, for several reasons. First, grade and yield programs are improving. If we can add muscle and reduce backfat by feeding more protein, maybe the grade and yield program can pay for the extra soybean meal. Second, growth rate is getting to be a critical factor with the high costs and fast schedules in confinement buildings. Finally, gilts and barrows perform differently. Maybe we should feed them differently.

A recent study from Iowa State included 5 trials with more than 300 hogs. The pigs were fed as follows:

Grower.
Low Protein Group:	14%	11%
Moderate Protein Group:	16%	13%
High Protein Group:	18%	15%

Here are the results:

	PROTEIN LEVEL
	Low	Moderate	High
Average daily gain, lb.	1.73	1.92	1.90
Feed conversion, F/G	3.41	3.05	3.05
Last rib fat, in	1.2	1.2	1.1
Loin eye area, sq in	4.2	5.0	5.2

You can see that feeding a high protein level has little effect on either performance or carcass traits. But reducing protein below the moderate or "recommended" level slows growth rates by 10% and impairs feed conversion by 12%. In this study, low protein didn't change back fat but loin eye area was about .8 square inch smaller.

These results tell us to stick to the recommended amount of protein.

That conclusion is easier to believe when you put dollars and cents behind the numbers. I calculated cost per pound of gain for each of the protein levels with high, average and low feed prices. And it didn't matter what feed costs were. Cost per pound of gain was always the most economical at the moderate protein level.

Do other studies agree with these findings? Those I have found show no clear advantage of feeding high protein. One study (University of Georgia) showed a slight advantage on cost per pound of gain with low protein feed. But the low protein group took 5 days longer to reach market weight, they were fatter and had less muscle.

GILTS VS. BARROWS

It's clear from many studies that barrows eat more and grow faster than gilts. Feed conversion is usually about the same for both sexes. Gilts have more muscle and less fat.

What isn't so clear is whether gilts have a different protein requirement than barrows. As the theory goes, barrows should reach peak performance at a lower level of protein than gilts. But it's tough to find much data to support this theory.

For example, a recent study from Michigan State shows little change in the finishing period for either barrows or gilts at protein levels of 13% and higher. A previous study at the same university showed performance for both sexes plateaued at about 14% crude protein. But I did find one Illinois study that showed a difference in protein requirement. Twelve percent protein supported maximum gains in barrows. Fourteen percent provided the fastest growth rate in gilts.

So what can we learn from all of this?

1. When barrows and gilts are penned together, feed16% crude protein (.80% lysine) from 50 to 125 pounds. From 125 pounds to market weight, feed 13% crude protein (.60% lysine).

2. If you feed extra protein, you might get a small boost in performance and carcass quality, but it won't be enough to pay for the higher feed cost.

3. If you cut back on protein, growth performance will drop more than the cost of the feed. Pigs could be somewhat fatter and loin eyes will be smaller.

4. Although gilts perform differently than barrows, there isn't enough evidence, in my opinion, to justify feeding them differently. We could use some more research in this area.

Hall, Becker Have Top Junior Market Swine

BY LISA RISSER

HARRISBURG — The 1988 Farm Show is one that Mark Hall of Julian will long remember. It's the year he showed his first grand champion market swine. "The best I'd ever done at Farm Show before this was second in my class," recalled Mark, who has been showing for six years.

Mark exhibited a 227-pound middleweight gilt that was raised on his family's 170-acre, farrow-to-finish farm, Rattlesnake Mountain Farm. The 18-year-old son of Charles B. and Linda L. Hall, Mark plans to use the proceeds from his gilt's sale toward a new truck.

A Dalmatian puppy is what Melissa Becker, 9, plans to buy using the money she receives from the sale of her reserve grand champion swine. Melissa, the daughter of Marlin and Nancy Becker of Manheim, was surprised when her pig placed so well. "I thought maybe Karen would get it (the championship title)," she said. Karen, Melissa's 13-year-old sister, showed the grand champion market swine at last year's Farm Show.

Melissa, who is a first-time exhibitor at Farm Show, showed a heavyweight hog called Jasper that was a littermate to Karen's hog, which placed second in its middleweight class.

Other winners in the junior market swine show, which was held last week at the Farm Show complex, include Chris Kirst of Fredricksburg (Lebanon), lightweight champion; Jeff Bomgardner of Annville (Lebanon), reserve lightweight champion; Greg Bomgardner of Annville, reserve middleweight champion; and Lori Cash of Centre Hall (Centre), reserve heavyweight champion.

Sheep At Show Reflect Strong Market

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania has some 4,900 sheep producers, and the sheep and wool industry remains strong in the Commonwealth, says Clair Engle, associate professor of animal science at Penn State.

"Prices for lambs and wool have been strong over the last 14 months, and I see good prices for wool continuing," he says. "The wool market should remain strong through 1988, especially for cleaner and finer wool."

But the lamb industry may not do as well. Engle predicts lower prices for lambs in 1988, because of a 7 to 10 percent increase in lamb production in 1987-88, as well as record supplies of competing meats such as poultry and pork.

Demand is up for cleaner, finer wools, and prices for medium-textured wools will be 15 to 20 percent higher in 1988 than they were in 87 -- provided the wool is good quality and clean. Prices for finer wools are expected to be higher in 1988 than in 1987 because of a demand for improved quality in worsted wool for finer garments.

And how much wool does it take to make a quality garment? To give a general idea, Engle says, a man's suit requires two and one half pounds of wool. The fleece from an average Pennsylvania sheep provides three and one half pounds of clean wool. So one fleece is enough for one suit -- with an extra pair of pants.

First-Time Exhibitor Wins Dressed-Poultry Show

HARRISBURG — The 1988 Farm Show dressed-poultry exhibit featured 29 turkeys and four capons in eight different classes. First-time exhibitor Bolton Turkey Farm of Silverdale (Bucks) showed the grand champion turkey, a 35-pound large tom.

The reserve grand champion turkey was owned by Konhaus Farms from Cumberland County. The bird chosen for this honor was the second-place winner of the large tom class.

Other winners include Strockland Farms, first-place heavy turkey hen; Bolton Turkey Farm, first-place light turkey hen and second-place heavy turkey hen; and Konhaus Farms first- and second-place light toms and first- and second-place medium turkey hens.

In the dressed-capon division, the winners were Emma R. and Mervin E. Peifer of Manheim (Lancaster). They won first and second place respectively. Shawn Broderick of Conestoga (Lancaster) received first place in the competition for FFA'ers. Kellene Reynolds of Montrose (Susquehanna) took top honors in the 4-H class.

The Farm Show Commission awarded walnut plaques to Bolton Turkey Farm for having the reserve champion turkey and Konhaus Farms for having the reserve champion dressed turkey and the best dressed turkey display.

Other plaque recipients were Emma R. Peifer for best dressed open class capon and Kellene Reynolds for best dressed junior class capon. Dr. John Bezpa, with the department of animal science at Rutgers University, judged the competition.

Passing Down the Farm
By Alvi O. Voigt
Penn State Professor of Agricultural Economics

It was too much of a coincidence to ignore. Within two days in two separate publications "family business" was featured. One of my regular trade publications contained a full-page advertisement of the book "Passing Down the Farm" by Donald J. Jonovic and Wayne D. Messick. The price was $24.95 for 210 pages, hard bound. The book is about growth and profitability in the long term, about keeping families and farms intact through well-planned ownership transition--and it deals with these issues in realism and honesty. It tackles questions like: Why are in-laws so hard to get along with? Is Dad going to retire . . . or isn't he? Where do our heirs find the capital to buy the farm? How do we take care of off-farm heirs? Other books were also advertised; these were books to help families stay in business, but not necessarily farm families. All seem worthwhile, such as "Beyond Survival" by Leon A. Danco, a 196-page guide for the business owner and his family to ensure the dream survives beyond the entrepreneur. This book deals with who's who of power, how to manage people and money, how to gain commitment from outside advisers, how to manage succession and how to manage estate palnning. Cost: $19.95. "Inside the Family Business" is another Danco book. Danco is an authority on privately-held businesses. He and his wife Katy were featured in the December 1987 Conference Board magazine "Across the Board." Katy has authored still another book, "From the Other Side of the Bed--As a Woman Looks at Life in the Family Business;" written for and about women in family businesses whether as full working partners, potential successors, part-time officers, fictional directors or not involved at all. Women can be a major strength or major weakness of a successful family business. The Dancos co-founded the Cleveland-based Center for Family Business, a national association for business owners and their families. They are often considered the nation's leading authorities on family businesses. Leon is a senior advisor to the Small Business Administration's Family Business Continuity Task Force and a business professor at John Carroll University in Cleveland. He has an AB in classics and MBA from Harvard, and a Ph.D. in economics from Case Western Reserve University. Katy has served as the center's senior seminar director since 1970, and as a lecturer and consultant she specializes in family relationships and the woman's role in a family business. In short, they are well-qualified!

Dancos' Forte

The Dancos' forte is treating the older, successful firm whose patriarch is starting to worry about succession and retirement. "What collapses the business owner's dream is that he never thought or planned on success. If he had considered at age 30 that by age 60 he'd be successful with children and grandchildren to worry about, he'd have been better off," Danco has said. And what happens when that owner must consider children's spouses as employees, or stepchildren as employees, his ex-wife as a shareholder, and so on? Most family-owned business (farms) come from humble origins--couples who start out and remember their days of struggle. Danco says, "In our experience smaller family businesses (farms) are generally more sensitive, and tend to view their employees as an extended family. With a relatively small number of employees and usually no professional human-resources manager, the owner becomes a bit of a father figure to everyone. If he's concerned and caring he'll say, 'Your wife's not well? Take the day off, Charlie.' There's a sense of obligation toward the nonfamily members who have helped the business (farm) succeed. The feeling is: 'You're a loyal part of the family. You do a good job for us. Now how can we help you?'"

Some Helps from the Authors

Leon: Estate planning is a new issue. Previously it was left to the likes of the Rockefellers and other dynastic families, but now everyone's conscious that it must be done. And business (farm) owners can leave their material wealth to successors in unbelievably bad ways. First of all, family members who aren't going to work in the business (on the farm) shouldn't own any of it. Otherwise, those who run the company (farm) might be burdened with demands from individuals whose goals are at odds with the firm's (farm's) health and perpetuity. The ultimate hope of estate planning is to ensure the peace, happiness and prosperity of the family. It should not mean discord among the inheritors, but it often does. With estate planning you must be philosophical before you become technical. Consider the question of "What is best for my family when my business grows beyond me" before you think about "How do I beat the tax laws." Too often, people minimize taxes only to build bigger bullets for their children to use against each other. Katy: Also, you must communicate your estate plan to your kids. Explain that the business (farm) goes to Joe, because he's devoted his life to working on it; the non-business possessions go to Sue, who hasn't been involved in the business (farm). Do it today, so there's no misunderstanding tomorrow. Sometimes, love is best expressed by not giving children equal shares of something they would wind up fighting over in the future. I believe that we must start explaining early in the lives of our children that 'fair' is what mon and dad want to do with their estate (farm). What is equal is our love.

And? Check your library for some of these books--or better yet, buy a couple for your personal reference. This winter, when chores take up less of your time, do a little reading and thinking about an important subject, passing down the farm.

Landis Brothers Elected To Deere's Manager's Club

COLUMBUS, OH. — John and Betty Rineer and Richard and Joan Miller of Landis Brothers, Inc., the John Deere dealership in Lancaster, has been elected to the Manager's Club of the John Deere Company of Columbus, Ohio.

Membership in the Club means that Wayne L. Chesney, General Manager of the Columbus Sales Branch of John Deere, has recognized Landis Brothers, Inc., as one of the top 30 agricultural dealers in the branch territory which embraces seventeen states in the Northeast quadrant of the United States. Selection to the Manager's Club is based on outstanding sales performance throughout 1987.

Richard Miller, left, and John Rineer, center, of Landis Brothers Inc. in Lancaster were elected into John Deere's Manager's Club.

John and Betty Rineer, Richard and Joan Miller and twenty-nine other members of the Manager's Club and their spouses were recently honored at a special weekend event in Columbus, Ohio, sponsored by Wayne L. Chesney and the John Deere Company of Columbus.

DeKalb Alfalfa Wins Grand Championship

DEKALB, IL. — DK135, one of DEKALB's leading alfalfa varieties, recently topped 144 entries to capture the grand championship of the World Forage Analysis Superbowl. "Of the twelve DEKALB entries in the contest, five achieved top placements," says Dave Voss, Soybean and Alfalfa Product Manager. "That speaks very strongly for the quality and consistent performance of our alfalfa varieties!"

Since the Superbowl's inception four years go, DEKALB-PFIZER varieties have placed in the "Top 10" of the contest's four divisions a total of 28 times, Voss continues. "Our alfalfa has won the most national contest honors since the contest began — no other company comes close," he says.

The forage contest is sponsored by Holstein World, Inc., the University of Wisconsin Extension Service, Wisconsin Dairy Herd Improvement Association, and the World Dairy Expo. Entries are judged on quality and quantity of nutritional components which affect dairy cattle feeding and production efficiency.

This year's grand champion entry was submitted by dairyman Orland Reimer of Loganville, WI. Reimer's DK135 sample tested 27.5 on protein, 161.1 relative feed value, and would provide 2,758 pounds of milk per ton of feed. In comparison, the contest average was 20.8 protein, 136.8 relative feed value, and 1,804 pounds of milk.

"We're always happy to see encouraging results such as those achieved by Orland Reimer with DK135," Voss concludes. "Through such contests as the Forage Analysis Superbowl, top producers are demonstrating that DEKALB-PFIZER products are indeed the industry leaders."

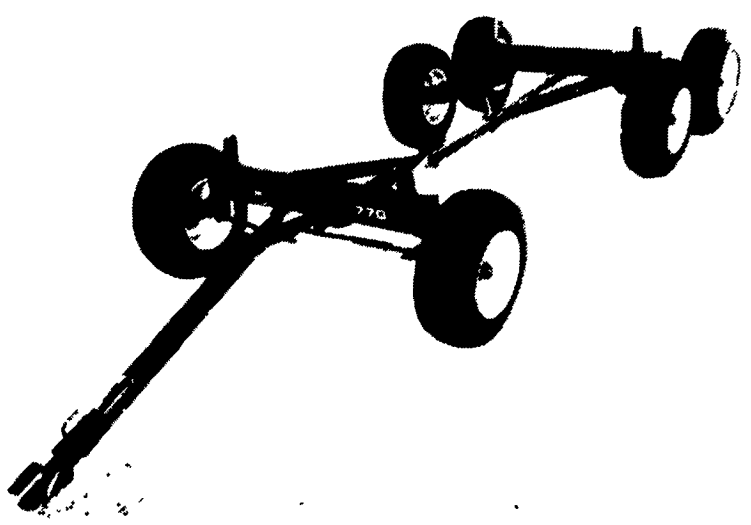
Deere Farm Wagons Increase Load-Carrying Capacity

MOLINE, IL. — John Deere now offers four new farm wagons that increase load carrying capacity.

The 700 wagon (7 ton), has 40 percent more capacity than the 965 (5 ton) which it replaces, the 720 (9 ton) replaces the 1065A (7 ton), offering 28% more capacity; the 740 (11 ton) which replaces the 1075 (10 ton), for a 10% increase in capacity; and the 770 (14 ton), which replaces the 1275 (12 ton), has 17% more capacity.

Capacity increases were achieved with new wheel and tire options combined with new U-section reaches (700 and 720 models) and steering component changes (740 model).

All features of the previous models have been retained on the new 700 series. Uniform diameter spindles avoid the concentrated stress points of tapered spindles. C-section or U-section reach provides more strength and flexibility than conventional round-reach designs. Other features include telescoping hitch poles, automotive type steering, bolster stakes and safety tow chains.



Capacity increases in this wagon were achieved with new wheel and tire options combined with new U-section reaches and steering-component changes.

Major Safety Campaign Launched

LITITZ — Future Farmers of America (FFA) chapters throughout Pennsylvania have joined in a major effort to increase awareness of farm safety and the need for safe handling of farm chemicals. To help reduce potential user exposure to agricultural chemicals, FFA chapters are selling two pairs of safety goggles and two pairs of gloves in kits called "2+2 Handy Paks" in time for spring planting. Kits, which include a 16-page brochure on farm chemical safety, will be sold January 1 - April 30 by participating FFA chapters at a minimum cost to farmers.

The program, sponsored by Monsanto, was developed to heighten awareness in the farm community of the importance of using protective equipment when handling agricultural chemicals.

According to Dave Althaus, coordinator of Monsanto's farm chemical safety programs, it is possible to significantly reduce the risk of exposure by merely using proper protective equipment. "Wearing gloves and goggles when handling farm chemicals, or while adjusting and repairing equipment, is perhaps the single most important step a farmer can take to reduce exposure to hands or eyes," he says.

Through this program, both Monsanto and the FFA have renewed their commitment to make America's farms a safer environment, Althaus reports. "The FFA organization is particularly important in this effort since it can serve as a powerful and influential voice on behalf of farm safety in the local community."

The 2+2 Handy Pak Program was first introduced in 1986 on a trial basis in Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota. Based on FFA chapter response and sales results, the program was expanded last year to eight midwest states. For 1988, FFA chapters in 16 states are eligible to participate in the safety program.

"The program has rewards for everybody involved," Althaus observes. "FFA chapters have the opportunity to participate in a major community safety project, Monsanto has a meaningful way to help promote farm chemical safety, and farmers receive important safety protection equipment at a bargain. With the continued help and support of state and local FFA organizations, we look forward to an extremely successful program in 1988."

Participating FFA chapters purchase the 2+2 Handy Paks from Monsanto at cost, with all profits from the sale remaining with the local chapter. In each state, qualifying chapters also are eligible to win cash awards, ranging from $100 to $500, based on sales records.

For more information on the 2+2 Handy Pak Program, contact a representative of your local FFA chapter.

Kinze Unveils New Multi-Optional Series II Planters

WILLIAMSBURG, VA. — Take a single frame planter that plants 30" corn... and minutes later converts to 15", even 10" row spacings, for beans or other small grains... picture that same single frame planter set up, instead, with liquid or dry fertilizer options to save on the extra trips and expense of fertilizer applications.

Now, imagine that same single frame planter equipped with a double frame attachment to do it all -- the standard rows, the fertilizer options, the split rows. All with the same planter, same drive components, same drive system.

Fancy pipe dream? Not any more. The new Series II Planters, recently introduced by KINZE Manufacturing, Inc., are built with an innovative modular-design concept for total flexibility in planting, fertilizing and spacing options. As a result, you can pick and choose a variety of different planter set-ups... without changing planters or drastically altering the planter design. The Series II Planter systems are totally integrated, easy to modify and easy to add to when row spacings change.

At the heart of these revolutionary Series II Planters are three key features which give the units their versatility: 1) patented "pusher" row units, 2) independent, modular wheel assemblies and 3) contact drive wheels which eliminate dependency on mechanical clutches. KINZE's patented, front-mounted "Push" Row Units give the Series II all kinds of split-row options with the ability to convert in minutes. The standard Push Row Units can be set up with spacing options down to 15" rows. The Twin-Pusher Row Units are able to split rows down to 10".

The second feature is an independent, modular wheel assembly (and master slave hydraulic lift system) that lets you position the wheels any where on the frame to accommodate the various row spacings.

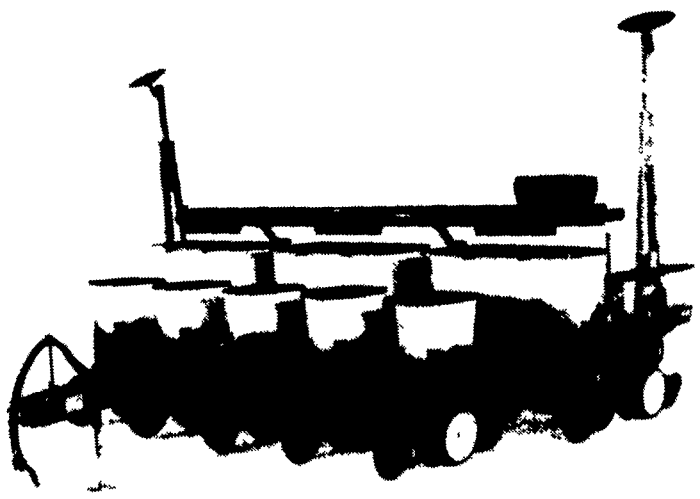
Third, a spring loaded contact drive wheel provides the power to easy-access, end-mounted transmissions. A heavy-duty 7/8" drive shaft ties the system together. The contact drive concept eliminates mechanical clutches, smooths the engage/disengage of the drive, keeps trash/roots/mud out of the system and eliminates the need to remove or disengage the drive wheel chains for transport.

Both the single and double frame units feature end-mounted transmission for easy access when changing rates. Additional percision-cut plated sprockets are also end-mounted. Spring-loaded ratchet-style idlers are built into the system. No tools are required.

The liquid and dry fertilizer attachments are front-mounted on the single frame, center-mounted on the double. The poly tank liquid units are equipped with quickfill, openers and John Blue squeeze pump. The dry fertilizer units are also available with an optional quick fill.

All of the KINZE row units--both standard and push models--use the "precision placement" plateless system with finger pick-up for corn, seed cup metering for beans and other small grains. Each one comes equipped with fiberglass seed boxes designed to carry up to 1.6 bushels of seed and standard or heavy-duty down pressure springs for conventional, minimum till or no-till situations. The Twin-Pusher Row Units, designed for solid rows, also feature a staggered design for maximum clearance, maximum soil and trash flow.

Series II Planters are available in 2-row (narrow and wide), 4-row (narrow and wide) and 6-row (narrow) models with conventional markers, 6-row (wide) and 8-row (narrow and wide) models with low-profile, double folding markers.



This new planter is built with a modular-design concept for total flexibility in planting, fertilizing, and spacing options.

MORE THAN A MOWER.

Of course, a Kubota G-Series lawn and garden tractor is a great way to cut the grass. And with a liquid-cooled 2- or 3-cylinder diesel engine, a Kubota is designed to outlast ordinary gas mowers by several seasons.

But that's not all. A Kubota G has a live front PTO shaft drive and a variety of hard-working implements. For example, you can choose a snowblower, tiller or front blade. There are five Kubota G models, from 10 to 16 horsepower. Some come with hydrostatic transmissions as standard equipment.

A Kubota G-Series diesel lawn and garden tractor. There's more to it than you think.

Ten-Year-Old Wins Jr. Beef Show

HARRISBURG — Ten-year-old Joshua Cowell of Greene County showed his first steer at a Pennsylvania Farm Show and walked away with grand champion honors in junior beef steer judging in the Large Arena. Joshua is one of the youngest exhibitors ever to win the top title.

Cowell says he has been showing steers for only two years and the 72nd Pennsylvania State Farm Show is his first. The happy young boy from Waynesburg weighs only 70 pounds and he had no difficulty leading his 1,280-pound black Angus-Chianina, "Coal," around the Large Arena to delight spectators and photographers. The steer weighs 18 times more than the 10-year-old, but that difference didn't matter to the boy or steer. "He's pretty tame," said Cowell.

Asked what he would do with the money from Friday's scheduled auction of his steer, Cowell said, "I'll put it in a savings account for college."

The confident young winner said he intends to go to college to become a veterinarian. "But," he added, "I'll keep some cattle too."

Seventeen-year-old Mike Messick of Middletown, Dauphin County, came close to making it three in a row. Messick's steer, "Alex," was Reserve Grand Champ. Messick was last year's top exhibitor, in fact he showed the Grand Champion Baby Beef for the last two years, winning the title in 1987 and 1986. The Dauphin County boy said he was not disappointed with second place this year and indicated he was already looking forward to next year's competition, "I'll be back again to try again," he said.
